POTTER PRIES IRON BAR FROM CHESTER CELL ON YULE DAY

Francis Murphy, 30, Escapes as Officer Eats Dinner.

OUTSIDE AID

Jail Guard Will be Questioned by Authorities.

While Chief of Police Brady Seevers was eating his Christmas dinner, yesterday, Francis Murphy, 30, pottery worker, convicted of a liquor violation charge in Justice A. G. Allison's court, escaped from the Chester jail.

Using a heavy iron pipe, which Chief Seevers declares was passed to him by some one from the outside, Murphy pried loose an iron bar near the bottom of his cell and crawled through the aperture. He then left the city building through the front door without attracting attention.

Faced 30-day Jail Term.

Murphy fled to Chester about four months ago, after the East Liverpool police raided his home in Carter alley, where they confiscated a quantity of liquor. He was arrested near Rock Springs park early in the week on a charge of violating the Yost prohibition amendment measure. Police say he carried a gallon of corn liquor at the time.

The prisoner was arraigned before Justice Allison, fined $300 and costs and given a jail sentence of 90 days. Unable to pay his fine, Murphy was remanded to the Chester jail until he could be taken to New Cumber-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—No year since that following the election of 1896 gives such promise of commercial progress and national prosperity as does 1925, in the opinion of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

"The situation in America looks more favorable for sound and orderly economic development than at any time since the war," the secretary declared today.

However, in order that the United States may enter the new year with a view of obtaining the maximum of prosperity and progress and that future years may guarantee to the people of the Republic prosperous and healthy conditions, certain fundamental requirements must be met, according to Mellon's view.

Among the paramount of these are:

(1)—Sound economic administration of the national and state governments.

(2)—Tax reform with assesments so levied that the source from which the returns are derived will remain unharmed.

(3)—Application of conservative, sane principles to the carrying on of commercial and industrial institutions.

Hard Work Necessary.

Secretary Mellon believes that the American people are pledged to the application of these principles, according to the spirit reflected from the national election when the voters "repudiated various theories inconsistent with economic laws and expressed themselves in favor of a conservative

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 26.—Fire from an overheated furnace today destroyed the beautiful country residence of Walter A. Becher, Banker, located on Bellevista road.

Howard Jackson, of East End, and Leo Davidson, of Wellsville, were fined $300 and costs each when arraigned before Mayor Brown today on charges of illegally possessing liquor. They were ordered committed to jail until the fines are paid.

Jackson was arrested in an East End restaurant by Patrolman Herman Roth at 1:30 o'clock this morning. It is alleged that he displayed a half gallon of gin, offering patrons a drink. He said he purchased the liquor at the state line.

Davidson was arrested on Peake street at 5 o'clock last night by Special Officer Edgarle Bloor.

These were the only arrests recorded by the police over the holiday.

Large cards listing Columbiana's table of new tax rates have been distributed by County Auditor C. E. Hamilton, of Lisbon, it was announced today. Within the next few days the table will be published in county newspapers.

The table shows the new and the old rate for each of the 70 taxing districts.

Wellsville's rate—29.20 mills—is the highest. The rate was 29.40 mills. Lisbon, with 25.60 as against 26 mills last year, is second highest.

East Liverpool's rate cut from 26.60 to 20.90 mills on a $32,705,800 duplicate.

E. Palestine Pays 23.60 Mills.

The East Liverpool school district rate is 16.80 mills, as against 20.50 last year.

Salem, which had a rate of 21.70 last year, will pay 20.10 mills on a valuation of $19,325,280.

THEATRE ROBBERS' RAID NETS $2,300

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 26.—As the cashier and manager of the Norva theatre were checking up the receipts shortly before midnight, two masked bandits entered the office, and at the point of revolvers, compelled them to hand over all the funds in their possession. A total of $2,300 was scooped up and placed in a bag. The robbers escaped.

Secretary of State Issues Order After 300 East Liverpool Motorists Pay for Tags—Rain Washes Paint From Tags.

Distribution of 1925 automobile license plates was suspended today by Deputy Registrar James S. Hilbert, as the result of orders received from Secretary of State Thad H. Brown.

The order, said to have been prompted by the discovery of a number of defective plates, was received here after approximately 300 sets of the new tags had been issued. Of this number, about 250 pairs were for pleasure cars, while the other 50 were truck licenses.

Deputy Hilbert made the soap and water test on his shipment of plates last week, following a report from Columbus that rain would wash the paint from the tags. The plate on which the test was made, however, withstood the water.

Ohio's automobile license plates for many years have been made by inmates of the Ohio State penitentiary. The paint, this year, was purchased from a Pittsburgh concern, which posted bond as a guarantee that the paint will withstand water.

Await Chemical Analysis.

Deputy Hilbert has been instructed to issue no more license plates until further orders are received. In the meantime, 1924 license plates will be honored by enforcement officers.

This is the second obstacle to be thrown in the way of the tag distribution within as many weeks. The first was the opinion handed down by Attorney General Crabbe which declared that the collection of a nominal service charge by deputy registrars was illegal.

More than 1,000,000 sets of tags which cost the state ten cents per set are involved in the present investigation. Aside from the financial angle, several months may be required to manufacture substitute tags should it be found that the present plates cannot be used. It has been suggested that a heavy coat of varnish would protect the paint against the rain, but whether or not this plan will be followed has not been determined.

Mr. Hilbert has approximately 4,300 sets of unissued tags at the local office, his initial shipment having consisted of 4,600 sets.

Ohio State university chemists have been asked to make an analysis of the paint being used on the tags. Pending the analysis the division is accepting no tags from the penitentiary.

One is Dead, Seven Injured in Lima; Icy Streets Blamed

LIMA, Dec. 26.—A 71-year-old man is dead, another seriously injured and six others are suffering from minor injuries, in a series of accidents resulting from the cold weather in this city over Christmas.

William A. Dailey, wholesale fruit dealer, died Christmas morning after being struck by an automobile while crossing the icy streets. R. E. Routso is lying in City hospital in a critical condition. His automobile skidded in the snow and crashed into two other machines.

Memorial for Coolidge and Hughes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes were presented today with a memorial resolution from the Federal Council of Churches, thanking them for the emphatic denial of the "Malevolent Rumors" of strife between the United States and Japan.

Drive Slow, Sound Horn at Crossings; Avoid Sled Crashes

Drive slow and sound your horn at street intersections.

This was the advice given motorists today by Chief of Police Hugh McDermott in a movement to avert coasting accidents while the snow continues.

"Automobile drivers by exercising sufficient care, can prevent accidents on coasting tracks" the chief declared. "We have no streets which can conveniently be closed to traffic for the benefit of the children, but if motorists drive slow and use the horn when approaching street corners we can reduce accidents to a minimum."

Mayor Brown has suggested that Minerva street, west of Avondale, Ravine street and other of the hillside thoroughfares, where the chance is not too great, be used by the coasters.

1,200 CHILDREN MEET SANTA AT ELKS' TEMPLE

Lodgemen Distribute Gifts on Christmas Morning.

THEATRE PARTY

Salvation Army and Lions' Club Also Aid Needy.

Approximately 1,200 children shared in the distribution of gifts to the needy on Christmas day by East Liverpool Lodge No. 258, B. P. O. Elks.

The children were entertained with a motion picture show at the Columbia theatre at 9 a. m. Upon leaving the theatre, the youngsters were escorted to the Elks' home by the Eagles band where they were provided with toys, stockings and candy. The band also played for the children as they passed through the ball room to receive their presents. About 75 lodgemen assisted in distributing the gifts.

Christmas cheer was also provided by the Salvation Army on Christmas day. While arrangements had been made to distribute only 200 baskets, the last-minute demands made extra numbers necessary. Two hundred and ten well filled baskets were distributed Wednesday afternoon and Thursday, while five others were sent out by Adjutant John Dean this morning, making a total of 215. Thirty-five of this number were distributed in Wellsville the other 190 to families in the East Liverpool district.

The Salvation Army fell $369.49 short of their $3,000 quota required to finance their Christmas dinner and winter relief activities. Contributions received Wednesday, the last day of the public solicitation, brought the fund up to $2,630.51. During Wednesday $172.83 was deposited in the kettles, while $120.25 was received in checks. A clean-up on the pottery canvass added $14.15 to the fund.

The Lion's club also distributed a number of Christmas baskets Thursday morning. Free dinners were furnished homeless men by Bert Gillespie manager of the Diamond cafe, yesterday.

Man Subdued as He Begins to Eat Yule Tree Ornaments

CINCINNATI, Dec. 26—Herman Strattman, 21, leaped from the dinner table at his home, Newport, Ky., Thursday, police say, and began to eat ornaments on the Christmas tree. It took five policemen to subdue and lock him up. Strattman recently was released from the Lakeland asylum.

Japan May Re-open Immigration Issue With United States

Information of a most reliable nature was obtained today that the Japanese government intends to re-open the question just as soon as it is considered the opportune time.

$39.72 TAXES PAID ON HOME OF TWO WIDOWS IN GLOBE ST.

Review-Tribune Sends Check From Welling-Lemley Fund.

$47.67 BALANCE

Cash Remaining Will be Turned Over to Two Women.

A check for $39.72, representing payment in full of the December, 1924, and the June, 1925, taxes on the property at 1731 Globe street, East End, which is occupied by Mrs. Matilda Welling, a widow; her four fatherless children and their widowed grandmother, Mrs. Henrietta Lemley, was mailed to Miss Jo Pike, Lisbon, county treasurer, today by the Review-Tribune.

This is the second disbursement of the $637.50 fund collected for the relief of the family in which death has struck twice in the last four years, leaving the six survivors dependent upon the earnings of the mother, who does washings for neighbors, and the aged grandmother, who works in the warehouse of an East End pottery.

A few days before Christmas, The Review-Tribune paid $550.11 to a loan company to liquidate a mortgage on the Welling-Lemley home.

Thus a total of $589.83—$39.72 for taxes for one year and $550.11 for the mortgage—has been disbursed, leaving a balance of $47.67. A check for the latter sum, together with tax receipts, will be delivered to Mrs. Lemley, the grandmother, in whose name the property is listed, and Mrs. Welling by the Review-Tribune.

Warmer Weather In Ohio Tonight; "Colder" Saturday

COLUMBUS, Dec. 26.—Warmer weather is the cheerful news handed out here this morning at the United States weather bureau. The mercury is expected to register between 15 and 20 above zero tonight. Declaration that the weather will be "much colder" Saturday night served to put a damper on the warmer weather forecast, however.

According to official reports, the coldest point in Ohio last night was Toledo, where it was one below. At Cleveland it was zero; 1 above here compared with 3 below Christmas morning; 4 above at Cincinnati and 4 above at Parkersburg. It was 4 below at Fort Wayne, Ind., last night.

Despite these official readings, many local thermometers registered as low as 5 below here last night. The temperature tomorrow will get as high as 30 or 32 above, it was stated.

FOUR KILLED AT CROSSING

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 26.—Four persons were instantly killed at a grade crossing of the Big Four Railroad on South Charleston Pike, near here, this morning, when a train struck the automobile in which they were riding. The dead are: Elijah E. Wilson, 33, motorman; Harry Wilson, 25, a brother; Mrs. Gladys Wilson and Marjory Wilson, 9, all of Springfield.

CHRISTMAS EVE BLAZE SWEEPS SCHOOL HOUSE; SOUTHERN DAM BREAKS

Careful Recheck Shows 33 Are Dead and More Than 40 in Hospitals and Homes of Hobart, Okla.. While 12 Bodies are Recovered and 22 Persons are Listed as Missing at Saltville, Va.

CANDLE IGNITES COTTON ON TREE; CHILDREN AND PARENTS TRAPPED

Rescuers Toil Through Tons of Half Frozen Lime Refuse in Search for Victims of Tragedy in Virginia, Caused When Dam at Alkali Works Collapses and Avalanche Sweeps Down Valley.

HOBART, Okla., Dec. 26.—Careful recheck this morning of the injured in the Babbs school disaster, which took 33 lives on Christmas eve, shows that there are more than 40 in hospitals and homes.

Several of these are expected to die. It was only this morning that actual figures from the injured in farm houses scattered over miles of countryside began to be totalled.

Authorities said today that the dead and injured, including minor injuries, will be at least a hundred, half of the audience that jammed the little wooden schoolhouse.

Late today, Hobart's tragic funeral services will be held. And they will be more poignant in their picture of grief because of the fact that in a common grave will be buried bits of bones and charred flesh, whose identity bereaved parents have only been able to guess.

There is a list of dead because it is known that those who did not return or were not accounted for among the injured fell in the fiery school house furnace. But there is no knowledge, in the majority of cases, which portions of twisted legs and arms and torsos belong to the persons whose names they may have held in life.

Town Too Dazed to Talk.

There will be a few private funerals, but only a few. These will be of those bodies which have been recognized.

Hobart's story of tragedy is just being told. The little inland town was too dazed yesterday, the survivors unable to recall anything but the horror of the night.

Now it is established that a few persons were saved by being pushed through the wire netting-barred windows, but only a few. One window alone, the one through which Mrs. Florence Hill, who gave her life for her pupils, thrust a few children, yielded to the efforts to tear away the screens.

The story of the tragedy is brief, but in its detail more horribly than its first report.

Room Becomes Inferno.

A candle ignited some cotton on the Christmas tree. The cotton dropped into a bundle of paper taken from presents. Then a lamp exploded. Flames

Three Fire Calls Over Holiday, But No Serious Loss

The fire department answered three calls over the holiday, but no serious property damage resulted from any of the blazes.

The first came in at 3:40 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the home of R. S. Daniels, 525 College street, where fire started from a faulty gas connection. The loss was confined to a rug. At 7:50 last evening, firemen were called to the Mrs. Jennie Hague home, 411 Jackson street, to extinguish a chimney fire. The other call was received at 10:25 o'clock this morning from the home of William Green, Sophia street, where the blaze caused no damage.

BREAK HOLIDAY MAIL RECORDS

Heaviest Receipt and Dispatch in History of Postoffice.

All holiday mail records at the local postoffice were shattered during the recent rush, according to figures made public today by Postmaster Edwin McClure.

Incoming and outgoing mail this year was the heaviest during the last three or four days preceding Christmas than at any time since the office was established. From Sunday until Christmas Day, the extra employes helped keep the mails moving. Regular postal workers were on duty oftimes until midnight and later to prevent a congestion.

Monday was by far the biggest day. The mail cancelling machine at the postoffice recorded 54,000 pieces on Monday and 40,000 pieces on Tuesday. On the biggest day last year, 39,000 pieces were run through the machine.

Receipts on Monday amounted to $1,208 and on Tuesday, $806. The biggest day last year amounted to a little more than $600. On Monday 807 parcels sent through the local office were insured.

During the Christmas rush the floor of the office was cleared every night. Not a parcel remained on the floor Wednesday evening. Parcels post workers were on duty until 11 o'clock Thursday morning, making deliveries.

Ohio Girl Kills Self When Lover Forgets Yule Gift

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 26.—Eva Baker, 19, of Girard, five miles west of here, is dead today from a bullet wound because the man she loved failed to send her a gift for Christmas. The girl shot herself with a revolver at her home there. She came to this section from Kentucky a few weeks ago.

Benedictine Order Mother Dies.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 26—Within two days of her eighty-fifth birthday, Mother Walburga Hoch, O. S. B., founder of numerous Benedictin communities, died here today. She was for 63 years a member of the order of St. Benedict.

Mother Walburga entered the order at Newark in 1860, having come from Baltimore. She established Benedictine foundations in Ohio, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, Washington, D. C., and Ecquador, South America.

TARIFF FIGHT IS PROMISED WHEN CONGRESS ENDS HOLIDAY RECESS

Cotton Mills of New England and North Carolina Will Seek Higher Duty on Foreign Products.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—In addition to all the other odds and ends of legislation which it must clean up before March 4, the 68th congress is likely to have a tariff fight on its hands.

It was learned today that the cotton mill industry of New England and North Carolina, immediately after the Christmas recess, will come before congress with a proposal for a higher duty on foreign products of a competitive nature. The claim is to be that an increase in the tariff duties is necessary to reopen and to keep going the cotton mills in the United States. At the same time, an appeal will also be made by the cotton industry to present Coolidge for relief under the flexible provisions of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act.

Democratic leaders in congress announced today they would fight any attempt at increase of the tariff rates on cotton goods. If such should be attempted they announce they will propose legislation for the reduction of tariffs on these and many other lines of protected manufacture.

The Democrats hold that the tariff protection carried in the present law is resulting in retaliatory tariffs by foreign countries, with the result of loss to American exports and shipping. They point to the recent retaliatory duties on automobiles levied by France.

POISON TESTS MADE ON EXHUMED BODY OF "MILLIONAIRE ORPHAN"

Investigation of Sinister Hints of "Something Wrong" in Death of "Bill" McClintock in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—The McClintock death probe today awaited the first preliminary report on the examination of the body of "Bill" McClintock, which was expected to give official verification or denial to the sinister rumors and hints that there was "something wrong" in connection with the death of the last blood heir to the McClintock millions.

And while the physicians and toxicologists were preparing to submit the results of their poison tests to the cororer, Wm. D. Shepherd, foster father of the "millionaire orphan" and chief beneficiary of his will, was speeding to Chicago from Albuquerque, N. M., his Christmas holidays cut short by the launching of the investigation which he declares will prove only that young McClintock died a natural death of typhoid fever.

Seek Traces of Typhus Germs.

Today's report of the roctors will not be in any sense complete or final. It is expected to tell only the apparent cause of death and whether or not any poison was found in the vital organs of the body. The complete report will be far more comprehensive, if the present plans for the probe are continued. This will attempt to show whether the typhoid, if such is held to have been the cause of death, was contracted naturally or by the murderous admin-

$39.72 TAXES PAID ON HOME OF TWO WIDOWS IN GLOBE ST.

Review-Tribune Sends Check From Welling-Lemley Fund.

$47.67 BALANCE

Cash Remaining Will be Turned Over to Two Women.

A check for $39.72, representing payment in full of the December, 1924, and the June, 1925, taxes on the property at 1731 Globe street, East End, which is occupied by Mrs. Matilda Welling, a widow; her four fatherless children and their widowed grandmother, Mrs. Henrietta Lemley, was mailed to Miss Jo Pike, Lisbon, county treasurer, today by the Review-Tribune.

This is the second disbursement of the $637.50 fund collected for the relief of the family in which death has struck twice in the last four years, leaving the six survivors dependent upon the earnings of the mother, who does washings for neighbors, and the aged grandmother, who works in the warehouse of an East End pottery.

A few days before Christmas, The Review-Tribune paid $550.11 to a loan company to liquidate a mortgage on the Welling-Lemley home.

Thus a total of $589.83—$39.72 for taxes for one year and $550.11 for the mortgage—has been disbursed, leaving a balance of $47.67. A check for the latter sum, together with tax receipts, will be delivered to Mrs. Lemley, the grandmother, in whose name the property is listed, and Mrs. Welling by the Review-Tribune.

Warmer Weather In Ohio Tonight; "Colder" Saturday

COLUMBUS, Dec. 26.—Warmer weather is the cheerful news handed out here this morning at the United States weather bureau. The mercury is expected to register between 15 and 20 above zero tonight. Declaration that the weather will be "much colder" Saturday night served to put a damper on the warmer weather forecast, however.

According to official reports, the coldest point in Ohio last night was Toledo, where it was one below. At Cleveland it was zero; 1 above here compared with 3 below Christmas morning; 4 above at Cincinnati and 4 above at Parkersburg. It was 4 below at Fort Wayne, Ind., last night.

Despite these official readings, many local thermometers registered as low as 5 below here last night. The temperature tomorrow will get as high as 30 or 32 above, it was stated.

FOUR KILLED AT CROSSING

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 26.—Four persons were instantly killed at a grade crossing of the Big Four Railroad on South Charleston Pike, near here, this morning, when a train struck the automobile in which they were riding. The dead are: Elijah E. Wilson, 33, motorman; Harry Wilson, 25, a brother; Mrs. Gladys Wilson and Marjory Wilson, 9, all of Springfield.

Rescuers Toil Through Tons of Half Frozen Lime Refuse in Search for Victims of Tragedy in Virginia, Caused When Dam at Alkali Works Collapses and Avalanche Sweeps Down Valley.

HOBART, Okla., Dec. 26.—Careful recheck this morning of the injured in the Babbs school disaster, which took 33 lives on Christmas eve, shows that there are more than 40 in hospitals and homes.

Several of these are expected to die. It was only this morning that actual figures from the injured in farm houses scattered over miles of countryside began to be totalled.

Authorities said today that the dead and injured, including minor injuries, will be at least a hundred, half of the audience that jammed the little wooden schoolhouse.

Late today, Hobart's tragic funeral services will be held. And they will be more poignant in their picture of grief because of the fact that in a common grave will be buried bits of bones and charred flesh, whose identity bereaved parents have only been able to guess.

There is a list of dead because it is known that those who did not return or were not accounted for among the injured fell in the fiery school house furnace. But there is no knowledge, in the majority of cases, which portions of twisted legs and arms and torsos belong to the persons whose names they may have held in life.

Town Too Dazed to Talk.

There will be a few private funerals, but only a few. These will be of those bodies which have been recognized.

Hobart's story of tragedy is just being told. The little inland town was too dazed yesterday, the survivors unable to recall anything but the horror of the night.

Now it is established that a few persons were saved by being pushed through the wire netting-barred windows, but only a few. One window alone, the one through which Mrs. Florence Hill, who gave her life for her pupils, thrust a few children, yielded to the efforts to tear away the screens.

The story of the tragedy is brief, but in its detail more horribly than its first report.

Three Fire Calls Over Holiday, But No Serious Loss

The fire department answered three calls over the holiday, but no serious property damage resulted from any of the blazes.

The first came in at 3:40 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the home of R. S. Daniels, 525 College street, where fire started from a faulty gas connection. The loss was confined to a rug. At 7:50 last evening, firemen were called to the Mrs. Jennie Hague home, 411 Jackson street, to extinguish a chimney fire. The other call was received at 10:25 o'clock this morning from the home of William Green, Sophia street, where the blaze caused no damage.

BREAK HOLIDAY MAIL RECORDS

Heaviest Receipt and Dispatch in History of Postoffice.

All holiday mail records at the local postoffice were shattered during the recent rush, according to figures made public today by Postmaster Edwin McClure.

Incoming and outgoing mail this year was the heaviest during the last three or four days preceding Christmas than at any time since the office was established. From Sunday until Christmas Day, the extra employes helped keep the mails moving. Regular postal workers were on duty oftimes until midnight and later to prevent a congestion.

Monday was by far the biggest day. The mail cancelling machine at the postoffice recorded 54,000 pieces on Monday and 40,000 pieces on Tuesday. On the biggest day last year, 39,000 pieces were run through the machine.

Receipts on Monday amounted to $1,208 and on Tuesday, $806. The biggest day last year amounted to a little more than $600. On Monday 807 parcels sent through the local office were insured.

During the Christmas rush the floor of the office was cleared every night. Not a parcel remained on the floor Wednesday evening. Parcels post workers were on duty until 11 o'clock Thursday morning, making deliveries.

Benedictine Order Mother Dies.

TARIFF FIGHT IS PROMISED WHEN CONGRESS ENDS HOLIDAY RECESS

Cotton Mills of New England and North Carolina Will Seek Higher Duty on Foreign Products.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—In addition to all the other odds and ends of legislation which it must clean up before March 4, the 68th congress is likely to have a tariff fight on its hands.

It was learned today that the cotton mill industry of New England and North Carolina, immediately after the Christmas recess, will come before congress with a proposal for a higher duty on foreign products of a competitive nature. The claim is to be that an increase in the tariff duties is necessary to reopen and to keep going the cotton mills in the United States. At the same time, an appeal will also be made by the cotton industry to present Coolidge for relief under the flexible provisions of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act.

Democratic leaders in congress announced today they would fight any attempt at increase of the tariff rates on cotton goods. If such should be attempted they announce they will propose legislation for the reduction of tariffs on these and many other lines of protected manufacture.

The Democrats hold that the tariff protection carried in the present law is resulting in retaliatory tariffs by foreign countries, with the result of loss to American exports and shipping. They point to the recent retaliatory duties on automobiles levied by France.

POISON TESTS MADE ON EXHUMED BODY OF "MILLIONAIRE ORPHAN"

Investigation of Sinister Hints of "Something Wrong" in Death of "Bill" McClintock in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—The McClintock death probe today awaited the first preliminary report on the examination of the body of "Bill" McClintock, which was expected to give official verification or denial to the sinister rumors and hints that there was "something wrong" in connection with the death of the last blood heir to the McClintock millions.

And while the physicians and toxicologists were preparing to submit the results of their poison tests to the coroner, Wm. D. Shepherd, foster father of the "millionaire orphan" and chief beneficiary of his will, was speeding to Chicago from Albuquerque, N. M., his Christmas holidays cut short by the launching of the investigation which he declares will prove only that young McClintock died a natural death of typhoid fever.

Today's report of the roctors will not be in any sense complete or final. It is expected to tell only the apparent cause of death and whether or not any poison was found in the vital organs of the body. The complete report will be far more comprehensive, if the present plans for the probe are continued. This will attempt to show whether the typhoid, if such is held to have been the cause of death, was contracted naturally or by the murderous admin-

BOOTLEGGER FLEES FROM JAIL

POTTER PRIES IRON BAR FROM CHESTER CELL ON YULE DAY

Francis Murphy, 30, Escapes as Officer Eats Dinner.

OUTSIDE AID

Jail Guard Will be Questioned by Authorities.

While Chief of Police Brady Seevers was eating his Christmas dinner, yesterday, Francis Murphy, 30, pottery worker, convicted of a liquor violation charge in Justice A. G. Allison's court, escaped from the Chester jail.

Using a heavy iron pipe, which Chief Seevers declares was passed to him by some one from the outside, Murphy pried loose an iron bar near the bottom of his cell and crawled through the aperture. He then left the city building through the front door without attracting attention.

Faced 30-day Jail Term.

Murphy fled to Chester about four months ago, after the East Liverpool police raided his house in Center alley, where they confiscated a quantity of liquor. He was arrested near Rock Springs park early in the week on a charge of violating the Yost prohibition amendment measure. Police say he carried a gallon of corn liquor at the time.

The prisoner was arraigned before Justice Allison, fined $300 and costs and given a jail sentence of 90 days. Unable to pay his fine, Murphy was remanded to the Chester jail until he could be taken to New Cumber-

MELLON SEES TRADE REVIVAL

Treasury Chieftain Predicts Prosperity in 1925.

BY ROBERT S. THORNBURGH

Copyright, 1924, By I. N. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—No year since that following the election of 1896 gives such promise of commercial progress and national prosperity as does 1925, in the opinion of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

"The situation in America looks more favorable for sound and orderly economic development than at any time since the war," the secretary declared today.

"However, in order that the United States may enter the new year with a view of obtaining the maximum of prosperity and progress and that future years may guarantee to the people of the Republic prosperous and healthy conditions, certain fundamental requirements must be met, according to Mellon's view.

Among the paramount of these are:

(1)—Sound economic administration of the national and state governments.

(2)—Tax reform with assesments so levied that the source from which the returns are derived will remain unharmed.

(3)—Application of conservative, sane principles to the carrying on of commercial and industrial institutions.

Hard Work Necessary.

Secretary Mellon believes that the American people are pledged to the application of these principles, according to the spirit reflected from the national election when the voters "repudiated various theories inconsistent with economic laws and expressed themselves in favor of a conservative

Two Men Assessed $300 Each on Dry Law Charges Here

Howard Jackson, of East End, and Leo Davidson, of Wellsville, were fined $300 and costs each when arraigned before Mayor Brown today on charges of illegally possessing liquor. They were ordered committed to jail until the fines are paid.

Jackson was arrested in an East End restaurant by Patrolman Herman Roth at 1:30 o'clock this morning. It is alleged that he displayed a half gallon of gin, offering patrons a drink. He said he purchased the liquor at the state line.

Davidson was arrested on Peake street at 5 o'clock last night by Special Officer Edgarle Bloor.

These were the only arrests recorded by the police over the holiday.

COUNTY LISTS TAX RATES FOR 70 DISTRICTS

Large Cards Show Old as Well as New Millage.

20.90 CITY RATE

School District Will Pay 16.80; Wellsville is Highest.

Large cards listing Columbiana's table of new tax rates have been distributed by County Auditor C. E. Hamilton, of Lisbon, it was announced today. Within the next few days the table will be published in county newspapers.

The table shows the new and the old rate for each of the 70 taxing districts.

Wellsville's rate—29.20 mills—is the highest. The rate was 29.40 mills. Lisbon, with 25.60 as against 26 mills last year, is second highest.

East Liverpool's rate cut from 26.60 to 20.90 mills on a $32,705,800 duplicate.

E. Palestine Pays 23.60 Mills.

The East Liverpool school district rate is 16.80 mills, as against 20.50 last year.

Salem, which had a rate of 21.70 last year, will pay 20.10 mills on a valuation of $19,325,280.

Wellsville's duplicate jumps from $8,254,660 to $10,172,560.

East Palestine, which had the second highest tax rate in the county last year, or 28.60 mills on a valuation of $5,541,260, now has a rate of

THEATRE ROBBERS' RAID NETS $2,300

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 26.—As the cashier and manager of the Norva theatre were checking up the receipts shortly before midnight, two masked bandits entered the office, and at the point of revolvers, compelled them to hand over all the funds in their possession. A total of $2,300 was scooped up and placed in a bag. The robbers escaped.

Secretary of State Issues Order After 300 East Liverpool Motorists Pay for Tags—Rain Washes Paint From Tags.

Distribution of 1925 automobile license plates was suspended today by Deputy Registrar James S. Hilbert, as the result of orders received from Secretary of State Thad H. Brown.

The order, said to have been prompted by the discovery of a number of defective plates, was received here after approximately 300 sets of the new tags had been issued. Of this number, about 250 pairs were for pleasure cars, while the other 50 were truck licenses.

Deputy Hilbert made the soap and water test on his shipment of plates last week, following a report from Columbus that rain would wash the paint from the tags. The plate on which the test was made, however, withstood the water.

Ohio's automobile license plates for many years have been made by inmates of the Ohio State penitentiary. The paint, this year, was purchased from a Pittsburgh concern, which posted bond as a guarantee that the paint will withstand water.

Await Chemical Analysis.

Deputy Hilbert has been instructed to issue no more license plates until further orders are received. In the meantime, 1924 license plates will be honored by enforcement officers.

This is the second obstacle to be thrown in the way of the tag distribution within as many weeks. The first was the opinion handed down by Attorney General Crabbe which declared that the collection of a nominal service charge by deputy registrars was illegal.

More than 1,000,000 sets of tags which cost the state ten cents per set are involved in the present investigation. Aside from the financial angle, several months may be required to manufacture substitute tags should it be found that the present plates cannot be used. It has been suggested that a heavy coat of varnish would protect the paint against the rain, but whether or not this plan will be followed has not been determined.

Mr. Hilbert has approximately 4,300 sets of unissued tags at the local office, his initial shipment having consisted of 4,600 sets.

Ohio State university chemists have been asked to make an analysis of the paint being used on the tags. Pending the analysis the division is accepting no tags from the penitentiary.

One is Dead, Seven Injured in Lima; Icy Streets Blamed

LIMA, Dec. 26.—A 71-year-old man is dead, another seriously injured and six others are suffering from minor injuries, in a series of accidents resulting from the cold weather in this city over Christmas.

William A. Dailey, wholesale fruit dealer, died Christmas morning after being struck by an automobile while crossing the icy streets. R. E. Routso is lying in City hospital in a critical condition. His automobile skidded in the snow and crashed into two other machines.

Memorial for Coolidge and Hughes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes were presented today with a memorial resolution from the Federal Council of Churches, thanking them for the emphatic denial of the "Malevolent Rumors" of strife between the United States and Japan.

Drive Slow, Sound Horn at Crossings; Avoid Sled Crashes

Drive slow and sound your horn at street intersections.

This was the advice given motorists today by Chief of Police Hugh McDermott in a movement to avert coasting accidents while the snow continues.

"Automobile drivers by exercising sufficient care, can prevent accidents on coasting tracks" the chief declared. "We have no streets which can conveniently be closed to traffic for the benefit of the children, but if motorists drive slow and use the horn when approaching street corners we can reduce accidents to a minimum."

Mayor Brown has suggested that Minerva street, west of Avondale, Ravine street and other of the hillside thoroughfares, where the chance is not too great, be used by the coasters.

1,200 CHILDREN MEET SANTA AT ELKS' TEMPLE

Lodgemen Distribute Gifts on Christmas Morning.

THEATRE PARTY

Salvation Army and Lions' Club Also Aid Needy.

Approximately 1,200 children shared in the distribution of gifts to the needy on Christmas day by East Liverpool Lodge No. 258, B. P. O. Elks.

The children were entertained with a motion picture show at the Columbia theatre at 9 a. m. Upon leaving the theatre, the youngsters were escorted to the Elks' home by the Eagles band where they were provided with toys, stockings and candy. The band also played for the children as they passed through the ball room to receive their presents. About 75 lodgemen assisted in distributing the gifts.

Christmas cheer was also provided by the Salvation Army on Christmas day. While arrangements had been made to distribute only 200 baskets, the last-minute demands made extra numbers necessary. Two hundred and ten well filled baskets were distributed Wednesday afternoon and Thursday, while five others were sent out by Adjutant John Dean this morning, making a total of 215. Thirty-five of this number were distributed in Wellsville the other 190 to families in the East Liverpool district.

The Salvation Army fell $369.49 short of their $3,000 quota required to finance their Christmas dinner and winter relief activities. Contributions received Wednesday, the last day of the public solicitation, brought the fund up to $2,630.51. During Wednesday $172.83 was deposited in the kettles, while $120.25 was received in checks. A clean-up on the pottery canvass added $14.15 to the fund.

The Lion's club also distributed a number of Christmas baskets Thursday morning. Free dinners were furnished homeless men by Bert Gillespie manager of the Diamond cafe, yesterday.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

"AMERICA IS 'BUYING' ENGLAND," SAYS LONDON BANKER.

"You Americans are buying and, what is worse, Americanizing England," A. Emil Davies, a London banker and leader of the British Labor party, said recently in an address in Cleveland, Ohio.

"You, who, before the war, rendered tribute to our wealthy men, who owned large shares in your Pennsylvania railroad, Canadian Pacific railroad, Cuban and other stocks, have turned the tables on us. Now we swell your treasury by our tribute of $150,000,000 or $200,000,000 yearly income tax.

"We have had to return to you 50 per cent of our holdings in your possessions, while you buy in your country. If I got the second largest chain drug store in England you get the 27-cent profit from the 29-cent article, not Englishmen.

"American millionaires who like the idea of having adults black their boots, bow and tip their hats, are taking over our estates, which have been family heritages.

Art and Literature.

"You are stripping England. We don't mind that. You are stripping her of her art treasures. We don't mind that. What we do mind is that your superiority makes you dictator of what plays, novels, poems, pictures, statuary shall be created in the future. Since you have become the only market our artists have shown a shocking deterioration.

"For though it is well to say genius will out, yet business is business, and genius must suit American producers now. Great Britian has no money to produce her own art.

"America whose financial stride has outstriped her cultural progress by a generation, is yet unfit to set artistic styles."

Subject to Arrest

ELYRIA, O., Dec.—Fifteen hundred persons in Lorain county have failed to file personal tax returns on automobiles, according to County Assessor Mason Smith. These are subject to arrest and penalty. Many of these cases, according to Smith, are young persons having no other tax and who rent private garages.

South America's new transcontinental railroad will be completed within a year.

ROAD THROUGH NARROWS URGED

Will be Placed on 1925-26 Program, Officials Say.

That the construction of a highway through the narrows below Yellow creek should be accomplished as soon as possible, is the opinion of Governor A. V. Donahey, who, according to Jefferson county good roads councilors, regards the river route as one of the most important highways in the state.

Work on a road from Toronto to Empire is about half completed, it is said, with concrete and brick being used in the construction.

It is possible that operations will be started next summer on the stretch between Empire and Stratton. No grading has been done on this piece of the proposed road.

Road building from Stratton to the county line, through the narrows, is on the 1925-26 road program, it is said.

BUSINESS HEAVY AT POSTOFFICE

The present holiday season has developed into one of the heaviest in years, according to postoffice employes.

Clerks and carriers cannot recall any Christmas in recent seasons that brought a greater amount of mail into the office here. As a result the comparatively small force was kept hoping at top speed in order to keep the mails flowing in and out on schedule.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness, sympathy and floral offerings tendered us during our recent bereavement in the death of our beloved wife and mother. We also wish to thank Rev. K. J. Stewart, and the choir of the Yellow Creek Presbyterian church.

L. W. SMITH AND FAMILY.

Wins Scholarship in English School

Among the American students awarded 1924 Rhodes scholarships at Oxford University, in England, is John Whipple Olmsted of Alhambra, Calif., a senior in the University of California Rhodes scholarships, awarded annually to a specified number of U S college youths, provide a three year course at the English institution

Yellow Creek Church Services.

Christmas services will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the Yellow Creek Presbyterian church.

There will be Christmas hymns and an appropriate sermon from the theme, "Guiding Stars of Life." Rev. K. J. Stewart, pastor, has invited members of the congregation to bring Christmas decorations for the church. The evening service will start at 7:30. The sermon subject will be, "The Service of God a Life-Time Job." Sunday school will meet at 10 a. m., and young people at 7 p. m.

Christmas celebration will also be held in the Long's Run Presbyterian church in charge of Rev. Stewart. The services will start at 2:30 p. m. An attractive Christmas program and a treat for the children will be featured. Sunday school will convene at 1:30 p. m.

L. T. L. Meeting Tonight

Members of the Loyal Temperance Legion will convene tonight at the home of Miss Kate MacGillivray, Ninth street. The meeting will start at 7 o'clock.

Observes Birthday.

Leland Minor, of Hammondsville, recently celebrated his twenty-first birthday, at a reception at his home. Twenty-five guests were present. He received a number of gifts.

Visits Parents Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Vere Hanley and children, Betty and Dan, are spending a week with Mrs. Hanley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George White of Nevada street.

COMMON SENSE IN SMALL DOSES

Wealthy is he who is healthy.

Better inspected foods than infected foods.

Vaccination makes isolation and fumigation necessary.

With germs galore, upon the floor,
It's useless disinfection
To sprinkle lime from time to time—
It offers false protection.

As efficient disinfections, it's hard to beat fresh air and fresh paint.

Too many of us overlook the excellency of our local hospital facilities.

The flies are on the unwrapped bread,
The dust the wind doth blow;
The undertaker plans ahead
While the doctor gets the dough.

Too often the over-crowded and badly ventilated school room is responsible for the spread of measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria and whooping cough.

If we'll open our hearts and our homes to God, the sun and the wind, we won't have to open them so often to the doctor.

Scott-Free Billions

Secretary Mellon reports to congress that our tax-free securities total $13,300,000,000 and are increasing at the rate of $1,000,000,000 a year.

This knowledge should spur congress to action. Nearly everybody, at Washington and elsewhere, is agreed that it is bad public policy—and also bad private policy in the long run—to permit the unrestrained issuance by states, cities and other political units of securities exempt from taxation.

The objections are simple and convincing. Such exemptions enable big fortunes to escape taxation, while small incomes bear the expenses of government issues of public bonds. By drawing billions into such investment, they lessen the volume of funds available for productive enterprise.

It should be an easy matter for congress to order the practice stopped.

Six Planks for Farmers

Louis V. Taber, head of the National Grange and a member of the president's farm commission, has six suggestions for the rehabilitation of agriculture and its maintenance on the same economic principles which have prospered business. They are:

1. Develop better marketing methods.
2. Practice intelligent, informed production.
3. Reduce cost of government.
4. Enforce the laws.
5. Make internal improvements with agriculture in mind.
6. Further organize agricultural interests.

These are simple and straightforward suggestions. Although their declared purpose is to better the farmer's condition, none of them is a wholly selfish proposal Each one would benefit the whole consuming public as well as the section of the public that produces the foodstuffs for all.

French and British Debts

Regarding the proposed payment of the French debt to America, Winston Churchill, chancellor of the British exchequer, says:

"Any payments made by our debtors in Europe to their creditors in the United States should be accompanied by proportionate payments to Britain."

This statement has aroused considerable criticism in the United States. Whether such criticism is called for is questionable. It is to be remembered that Britain lent the other allies more money than America lent her, that France is Britian's chief debtor, that Britain alone of our big debtors has already settled with America, and that it will be hard for her to meet her obligations if her debtors ignore their obligations to her.

"These are matters of conscience for the United States," remarks the London Daily Mail. "The British people hate the whole controversy. But it is vital for them to raise it, for their very existence is at stake. If we pay 1,000,000,000 pounds that we owe and lose 2,000,000,000 pounds that we are owed, then for every man here, as Mr. Bonar Law predicted on the eve of his death, the standard of living will be lowered for a generation."

It is awkward, however, for the United States government to take official notice of such a controversy between Britain and France. It looks like a matter for the conscience of France, rather than America. All that may be reasonably expected of America is not to encourage France in doing anything which would cheat Britain out of payment.

Antiseptic Sunlight

Great Britain, because of its much rain and fog, has shown a particularly keen interest in the making of artificial sunlight, as well as in recent efforts promoting the fullest use of real sunlight by the elmination of preventable smoke.

British scientists, working on both these problems, are said to be making remarkable progress in "actinotherapy," which is the scientists' pleasant way of referring to healing by means of rays of light. These doctors now declare that "the best antiseptic outside the body is sunlight, and the best antiseptic inside the body is sunlit blood." Even one dose of light greatly raises the natural resistance to disease by increasing the power of the white cells in the blood to kill bacteria.

Surely of all ways to combat ill health there is none more attractive than this simple one of working and playing as much as possible in the glorious sunshine.

ALSO AN EMPIRE

Within a short time, says C. D. Burney, aviation expert and member of the British parliament, the farthest point of the British empire will be within 24 hours of London by flying machine.

It is the intention of Britain to draw close together all parts of the empire within an adequate flying fleet, and to do it as quickly as possible.

Uncle Sam, please take notice.

Americans will please notice these words by Commander Burney, M. P.:

"The whole prestige of Great Britain hitherto has been maintained by implicit belief in the world's supreme navy. I have every hope that this belief will be now transferred to the building of a supreme air fleet."

The country is gradually waking up to our flying machine situation and it needed to wake up.

Secretary Wilbur gives this information: Five hundred airplanes of the navy are useless. And even the remaining 224 that can fly more or less, are all out of date.

You can easily imagine the difference between the flying fleet of this nation and that of Japan, which has 17 factories working night and day turning out up-to-date flying machines, made on the best European models.

Of course, Japan feels friendly toward us, and we feel friendly toward Japan. But some times situations change. It is not pleasant in the light of Secretary Wilbur's statement to read of one of the postoffice flying machines falling to the ground. The brave pilot, Charles Gilbert, was found dead. We have good, courageous flyers. We ought to supply them with machines that won't risk their lives unnecessarily.

BURYING A FAMILY

Katherine Mayo, writing about the Philippines, supplies information worth while. Self appointed "apostles" collect tribute in the name of religion. In one village, refusing to furnish supplies, a family of nine were selected. A deep hole was dug, "the nine prisoners were flung in—grandfather, babies and all. The leader ordered the villagers to shovel back the earth on them, and pack it down soundly."

After this the "apostles" said to the villagers, "Now, we shall have supplies from you. If you do not promptly comply we shall bury more families."

There seems to be some work left for the American public school to do in the Philippines before turning those regions over completely to the natives.

However, native deficiencies do not justify this country in turning the poor creatures over to highly trained American grafters.

SEGREGATE YOUR HENS

Do you keep chickens? Keep them away from other chickens if you can. Europe has sent here a poultry plague for which there is no known cure. Congress voted $100,000 to fight it. Rigid quarantine will help the situation.

Segregate your chickens and beware how you eat raw vegetables, unless cleaned with greatest thoroughness, which isn't easy.

Be cautious, especially about raw lettuce. The French alone know how to prepare that plant, grown in open fields, often with barnyard manure carrying typhoid germs.

Every leaf should be separated from every other leaf and carefully washed. The salad should be mixed in a big bowl, turned over and over, "well fatigued," as the French put it, until every part of every leaf has some of the vinegar on it. Vinegar kills germs.

With vegetables thoroughly boiled, there is, of course, no cause to fear typhoid.

It is strange that war upon the Catholic church appears to be most savage in countries that until lately were most completely Catholic. In Mexico, land of many churches, there is openly shown much anti-Catholic feeling.

And in the Argentine republic, a great power of South America, the attorney general threatens to imprison the Roman Catholic bishop, Mnsignor Juan Boneo, because he refuses to submit for government approval his credentials from Pope Pius.

Convicts in Moundsville prison, West Virginia, will hang up stockings on their cell doors tomorrow night. Santa Claus is expected to bring something to each one.

The poor convicts will reflect sorrowfully that Santa Claus cannot bring them the one thing they want, which is freedom. It may comfort them to realize that some extremely prosperous individuals at liberty are also unable to get exactly what they need, namely, a real interest in life, apart from making more money with enough already made.

DINNER STORIES

Bernard Shaw has a reputation for being self-possessed to the verge of being inhuman. In a letter to a friend he once illustrated the fact that he never cried over spilt milk by likening himself to an Indian prince whose favorite wife, when banqueting with him, caught fire and was burnt to ashes before she could be extinquished.

The Indian prince took in the situation at once and faced it in a thoroughly Shavian manner.

"Sweep up yohr misses," he said to his weeping taff, "and bring in the roast pheasant!"

A well-known captain, who was a great character, lay dying in his ship, and ordered the sailmaker to bring for his inspection the canvas in which he would be shrouded when buried.

"Too good—too good!" he exclaimed. "I can't have good canvas wasted like that! Find a rotten piece. And what are you going to weight me down with?"

"Chain cable, sir," was the reply.

"Chain cable—chain cable?" returned the dying man. "More waste—I won't hear of it. Holy-stones, I tell ye, or by the great hook block, I'll haunt ye"

When Archbishop Trench was dean of Westminster he delegated Canon Cureton to preach at the abbey on a certain saint's day. On such days the boys of Westminster school attended service, and afterward had the rest of the day as a holiday.

While Mr. Cureton, on the morning of the day he was to officiate, was looking over his sermon at the breakfast table, his son asked in a tone vibrating with anxiety:

"Father, is your sermon long today?"

"No, Jimmy, not very."

"But how long? Please tell me."

"About twenty minutes, I should say. But why are you so anxious to know?"

"Because the boys said they would thrash me if you are more than half an hour."

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Women don't defy cold weather the way they used to.

New York women are "bundling up" now. It used to be the men who "bundled up." Nowadays the men are "unbundling."

Take a look at the hurrying throng along Fifth avenue, if you want verification of these statements. Of course, if you want a studied "close up," you must ride on one of the big green buses that jog and rumble up and down the avenue. But a casual glance at passersby will do at first.

Almost every well-dressed man who passes is wearing low-cut shoes. And then, too, if you will notice, the well-dressed men all wear mufflers — "reefers" they are called in the expensive shops. Apparently the mufflers are not worn for warmth. They are draped around the back of the neck, and each end falls gracefully down alongside the lapels of the unbuttoned overcoat, thus leaving the throat exposed to the chilling blasts of winter.

Heavy ulsters, so familiar on men in other days, are not seen very often. The men favor more the form-fitting topcoat, even in this, the dead of winter.

Look now at the women. True, they, too, wear low-cut shoes, slippers, for fashion dictates that. But here is a secret. There appears to the casual onlooker to be considerably more plumpness in the way of feminine limbs than there was a few months ago. This might lead to the conclusion that feminine limbs, generally, are taking on flesh. This, however, is not true. The explanation of this plumpness is the secret about to be unfolded.

Women are wearing woolen stockings under their silk hose.

Of course, it's really no secret, except for the modest bachelor, because the big stores for some time have been advertising, "Dainty woolen stockings to wear beneath your silk hose—comfort and style in one."

Women, too, button their coats closely about them as they brave the breeze. It would seem that the day is gone forever when women go forth in the winter in peck-a-boo shirtwaist, transparent hosiery, thin skirts, and small pieces of fur dangling carelessly about their necks.

On the buses you will note even greater evidence that women are more concerned about their comfort than in other years. A majority of them are wearing knit jackets under their heavy coats. Cuffs on gloves keep the feminine wrists warm.

In the thirst parlors along the avenue there is still another distinction to be noted. Stand outside for a few minutes and watch the men and women as they approach these thirst places. The women, warmly bundled and comfortable, saunter into the parlors. The men, casting dignity aside, are more likely than not to be seen running up the avenue, if the day is bitter cold—and these December days are, indeed, cold.

But what happens inside the thirst parlor is one of the most amazing of all the amazing spectacles New York has to offer. Suffrage has either made women more sensible or men senseless; for there at the counter is the evidence. The women, who came in warmly bundled, are drinking hot malted milk and hot chocolate. The very men who ran the swiftest to get in out of the cold are drinking ice cream soda.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: The Fifth avenue parade. Dancing mamas. Slangy show girls. And doggy blades. More art galleries for meat packers. Tweeds and briar pipes. Jerome D. Kern, the composer. The veranda of the Savoy. And the pleasant spray of the Plaza fountain. The weird cry of geese in the lake lagoon. The Vanderbilts have never washed those upstairs windows. Dapper male dressmakers. Solemn butlers gazing through grilled doorways.

Complexions are now the Camille-like pallor. Courage Camilles! Matinee mobs surging in from cross street. A famous theatrical angel. Pudgy and debonnaire. Cruising taxicabs and automobile flirts. Mumbling mouchers shivering in the cold.

The old fellow who sells white puppies. New York's stingiest millionaire—the hawk nosed old pelican! Darting pigeons in the cathedral eaves. Wonder what I'll look like at 60! Hurry, rush and roar. And most of us pining for a moonlit garden, fiddles and minuet in a leary suburb.

Jewelry shops. Where trifles are priced at thousands of dollars. And always heavy hoofed detectives in the background. New York lights its lamp. And the rush to the dinner and theater begins. Two million pleasure seekers. Like goats leaping from crag to crag on a mountain of disillusion.

The evening lull at Forty-second street. Like a whirlpool suddenly stilled. There's Rudolph Block (Bruno Lessing). Curbstone fruit sellers counting the day's receipts. A man in puttees carrying a megaphone. No doubt a movie director.

Ponderous theatrical scenery trucks. Beauty parlors where trade begins shortly before midnight. The wan, gray beggars of Time Square. Yap wagons half filled. The scarred gambling house runner. Victim of a Chinatown hatchet man. The stroll ends.

I never enter a place that calls itself a 'sloppe." Nor do I associate with newspapermen who call themselves "journalists." Irvin Cobb is still content to be called a reporter and one of the finest establishments in New York remains a store. All of this is apropos of finding a man supposed to be very important in the industrial world in "conference." He perhaps doesn't know it but he was to be the topic of a magazine article that would have been very beneficial to him. Indeed, I imagine if such article were marketable he would have paid many thousands of dollars for the tribute. When he was "in conference" I didn't think him worth a line of space. Had he been busy that would have been an entirely different matter. I've been busy myself, despite the tittering. But never "in conference." No, my, no!

They tell of a brash young vaudeville agent—to whom names mean nothing—who had just received an order to book Mrs. Leslie Carter in the two-a-day. He called up the famous actress.

"Hello, Leslie," he said. "This is Jack speaking. Listen, Les, get an act together so when the bell rings you can step on it. Get me?"

New York's youngest pickpocket was picked up on Fifth avenue. He is 12 years old and was in knickerbockers. On the day he was arrested he had been foraging between the south entrance of Central park and the Thirty-fourth street shopping district and had picked up $52.50. He said he had been trained by an East Side Fagin and often averaged $100 a day. He did not lift wallets. He mixed in heavy crowds and extracted loose bills from the pockets of his victims.

The subway station at Fourteenth street is the most prolific source of revenue for pickpockets. There are 12 detectives who do nothing but lookout for them at this point.

CHAIRMANSHIPS IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Ever since the days when the "Covered Wagon" lumbered across the Oregon and the Santa Fe trails the course of empire has been steadily moving westward. This is a truism of the growth of the republic, but it is replete with the song and saga of a nation's history.

And now after several generations, the muse of history is writing another chapter of the story "Westward Ho." Just as the economic center of gravity moved to the Mississippi valley, so now an equally momentous change is taking place in the organization and control of the national legislature.

The change has come unheralded and without official or popular acclaim, but the change itself is one of the most significant phases of present day history. It means that the men of the west have replaced easterners and New Englanders in the seats of the mighty on Capitol Hill, thus upsetting a tradition and establishing a new order of things. Time and death removing old figures played their part in the shifting of the scene.

To appreciate the full extent to which the west is in the saddle today, one need only to refer to a Congressional Directory of 20 years or even 10 years ago and compare it as regards the leadership of the powerful committees of congress with the directory of this last session of the Sixty-eighth congress. Almost without exception the chairmanship of these powerful committees which often control national legislation has passed into the hands of men hailing from the Mississippi valley and beyond. The shifting of power has been much more sweeping in the senate than it has been in the house, despite the popular belief that the former body clings more tenaciously to tradition. The death of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Senator LeBaron Colt, of Rhode Island, accelerated and completed the change in the senate.

The commanding senate figures of two decades ago were almost all easterners. There was no steering committee in those days but a self-constituted little group headed by Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, and the elder Hale, of Maine, controlled policies and legislation and ruled with an iron hand. It is true that men like Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa, sometimes secured a position in the leadership of the body, but this was the exception rather than the rule.

Aldrich, however, was acknowledged leader. His place today is occupied by Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, part Kaw Indian, who as a boy slept with his relatives under the blanket in the wide open spaces of the west. The assistant leader was Hale, of Maine, whose place is now occupied by "Jim" Watson, of Indiana.

CHANGES IN SENATE

But the story is best told by the important committees and the contrast between the men who led them then and now. The committee on agriculture was led by Redfield Proctor, of Vermont. The present chairman of this pivotal committee is Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, and the two men in line for the succession are Senators McNary, of Oregon, and Capper, of Kansas. The finance committee chairmanship was then held by Senator Aldrich. Now it is held by Reed Smoot, of Utah, with Senator Jones, of Washington, and Curtis, of Kansas, in line for this important legislative post. It has been held in more recent years by Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania.

Twenty years ago William P. Frye, of Maine, headed the committee on commerce. Now Wesley Jones, of Washington, has the place. The most honored and sought post of all, the chairmanship of the committee on foreign relations, was held by Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, and more recently by Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. Now it is held by William E. Borah, of Idaho. Interstate commerce was held by Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia. Now it is held by Ellison D. Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, but only because senator Cummins, of Iowa, was president pro tem. of the senate, and Senator La Follette was next. Penrose headed postoffices and postroads, now headed by Senator Sterling, of South Dakota. Immigration was headed by William P. Dillingham, of Vermont, and more recently by Senator Colt of Rhode Island. Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, is the new chairman of the committee. Senator Allison, of Iowa, was chairman of the appropriations committee, which is now headed by Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming. Judiciary was headed by George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, more recently by Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut. The succession has fallen to Senator Cummins, of Iowa. Nathan B. Scott, of West Virginia, headed the committee on Mines and mining. The present chairman is Tasker Oddie, of Nevada.

Only one major committee of the senate is headed today by an easterner, namely, the Military affairs committee, of which James W. Wadsworth, of New York, is chairman. But it is significant of the westward trend, while Mr. Wadsworth is having his lease of power, the next four Republicans in order of seniority all hail from beyond the Mississippi river.

HOUSE TREND THE SAME

While the change in the house of representatives has been less rapid and less sweeping than in the senate, the trend is the same. Starting with the speakership, the most important position in congress, it is significant that two middle-westerners are contestants for the gavel now wielded by Frederick W. Gillett. The outstanding contestants for the honor are Martin Madden, of Illinois, and Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio.

But even in the house, the west has succeeded in establishing its grip on some of the pivotal committees. Take the ways and means, for instance. Its chairman is William B. Green, of Iowa. Even more significant as illustrating the trend is the fact that the next three in order of seniority are all trans-Mississippi men. It would mean that in the normal course of events and with a Republican congress the man who would head the committee from which the national tax bills would in the first instance emerge would be a westerner.

Then, again, take the appropriation committee. Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, is chairman, but in the event that he should be elected speaker of the house the next two Republicans in line are Charles R. Davis, of Minnesota, and Daniel R. Anthony, of Kansas.

The rules committee is headed by Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, but here again the west stands in line for the succession with Royal Johnson, of Suth Dakota, and Frank Scott, of Michigan, leading in seniority of service on the committee.

The judiciary committee has a Pennsylvanian, George S. Graham, at its head, but the next three members are all westerners, namely, Leonidas C. Dyer, of Missouri, William D. Bois, of Iowa, and Charles A. Christopherson, of South Dakota. The important committee on agriculture is headed by an Iowan, Gilbert Haugen while the committee on immigration is headed by Alebt Johnson, of Washington. With Hiram Johnson at the head of the senate immigration and Johnson in the saddle in the house, it seems that the Pacific coast, which is the key to the American immigration policy, now occupies a position of great strategic potentialities from a legislative staidpoint.

This trend of the change of power as sketched is not a thing of today or yesterday. It has been a process of evolution, but the acceleration since the war period has been very marked. However, the country as a whole has been slow to take in the significance of the change. What does it mean? What will be its effect on the legislative battles immediately ahead and on the national policy in the future? This is a matter for speculation. But there is no room for speculation as to the change itself. It means a territorial readjustment of power and a radical difference in the types of men in control, all the difference of tradition and trend of thought between an Aldrich and a Curtis, between a Lodge and a Borah.

Segregate your chickens and beware how you eat raw vegetables, unless cleaned with greatest thoroughness, which isn't easy.

Be cautious, especially about raw lettuce. The French alone know how to prepare that plant, grown in open fields, often with barnyard manure carrying typhoid germs.

Every leaf should be separated from every other leaf and carefully washed. The salad should be mixed in a big bowl, turned over and over, "well fatigued," as the French put it, until every part of every leaf has some of the vinegar on it. Vinegar kills germs.

With vegetables thoroughly boiled, there is, of course, no cause to fear typhoid.

It is strange that war upon the Catholic church appears to be most savage in countries that until lately were most completely Catholic. In Mexico, land of many churches, there is openly shown much anti-Catholic feeling.

And in the Argentine republic, a great power of South America, the attorney general threatens to imprison the Roman Catholic bishop, Msnignor Juan Boneo, because he refuses to submit for government approval his credentials from Pope Pius.

Convicts in Moundsville prison, West Virginia, will hang up stockings on their cell doors tomorrow night. Santa Claus is expected to bring something to each one.

The poor convicts will reflect sorrowfully that Santa Claus cannot bring them the one thing they want, which is freedom. It may comfort them to realize that some extremely prosperous individuals at liberty are also unable to get exactly what they need, namely, a real interest in life, apart from making more money with enough already made.

DINNER STORIES

Bernard Shaw has a reputation for being self-possessed to the verge of being inhuman. In a letter to a friend he once illustrated the fact that he never cried over spilt milk by likening himself to an Indian prince whose favorite wife, when banqueting with him, caught fire and was burnt to ashes before she could be extinquished.

The Indian prince took in the situation at once and faced it in a thoroughly Shavian manner.

"Sweep up yohr misses," he said to his weeping taff, "and bring in the roast pheasant!"

A well-known captain, who was a great character, lay dying in his ship, and ordered the sailmaker to bring for his inspection the canvas in which he would be shrouded when buried.

"Too good—too good!" he exclaimed. "I can't have good canvas wasted like that! Find a rotten piece. And what are you going to weight me down with?"

"Chain cable, sir," was the reply.

"Chain cable—chain cable?" returned the dying man. "More waste—I won't hear of it. Holy-stones, I tell ye, or by the great hook block, I'll haunt ye"

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Women don't defy cold weather the way they used to.

New York women are "bundling up" now. It used to be the men who "bundled up." Nowadays the men are "unbundling."

Take a look at the hurrying throng along Fifth avenue, if you want verification of these statements. Of course, if you want a studied "close up," you must ride on one of the big green buses that jog and rumble up and down the avenue. But a casual glance at passersby will do at first.

Almost every well-dressed man who passes is wearing low-cut shoes. And then, too, if you will notice, the well-dressed men all wear mufflers — "reefers" they are called in the expensive shops. Apparently the mufflers are not worn for warmth. They are draped around the back of the neck, and each end falls gracefully down alongside the lapels of the unbuttoned overcoat, thus leaving the throat exposed to the chilling blasts of winter.

Heavy ulsters, so familiar on men in other days, are not seen very often. The men favor more the form-fitting topcoat, even in this, the dead of winter.

Look now at the women. True, they, too, wear low-cut shoes, slippers, for fashion dictates that. But here is a secret. There appears to the casual onlooker to be considerably more plumpness in the way of feminine limbs than there was a few months ago. This might lead to the conclusion that feminine limbs, generally, are taking on flesh. This, however, is not true. The explanation of this plumpness is the secret about to be unfolded.

Women are wearing woolen stockings under their silk hose.

Of course, it's really no secret, except for the modest bachelor, because the big stores for some time have been advertising. "Dainty woolen stockings to wear beneath your silk hose—comfort and style in one."

Women, too, button their coats closely about them as they brave the breeze. It would seem that the day is gone forever when women go forth in the winter in peck-a-boo shirtwaist, transparent hosiery, thin skirts, and small pieces of fur dangling carelessly about their necks.

On the buses you will note even greater evidence that women are more concerned about their comfort than in other years. A majority of them are wearing knit jackets under their heavy coats. Cuffs on gloves keep the feminine wrists warm.

In the thirst parlors along the avenue there is still another distinction to be noted. Stand outside for a few minutes and watch the men and women as they approach these thirst places. The women, warmly bundled and comfortable, saunter into the parlors. The men, casting dignity aside, are more likely than not to be seen running up the avenue, if the day is bitter cold—and these December days are, indeed, cold.

But what happens inside the thirst parlor is one of the most amazing of all the amazing spectacles New York has to offer. Suffrage has either made women more sensible or men senseless; for there at the counter is the evidence. The women, who came in warmly bundled, are drinking hot malted milk and hot chocolate. The very men who ran the swiftest to get in out of the cold are drinking ice cream soda.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: The Fifth avenue parade. Dancing mamas. Slangy show girls. And doggy blades. More art galleries for meat packers. Tweeds and briar pipes. Jerome D. Kern, the composer. The veranda of the Savoy. And the pleasant spray of the Plaza fountain. The weird cry of geese in the lake lagoon. The Vanderbilts have never washed those upstairs windows. Dapper male dressmakers. Solemn butlers gazing through grilled doorways.

Complexions are now the Camille-like pallor. Courage Camilles! Matinee mobs surging in from cross street. A famous theatrical angel. Pudgy and debonnaire. Cruising taxicabs and automobile flirts. Mumbling mouchers shivering in the cold.

The old fellow who sells white puppies. New York's stingiest millionaire—the hawk nosed old pelican! Darting pigeons in the cathedral eaves. Wonder what I'll look like at 60! Hurry, rush and roar. And most of us pining for a moonlit garden, fiddles and minuet in a leary suburb.

Jewelry shops. Where trifles are priced at thousands of dollars. And always heavy hoofed detectives in the background. New York lights its lamp. And the rush to the dinner and theater begins. Two million pleasure seekers. Like goats leaping from crag to crag on a mountain of disillusion.

The evening lull at Forty-second street. Like a whirlpool suddenly stilled. There's Rudolph Block (Bruno Lessing). Curbstone fruit sellers counting the day's receipts. A man in puttees carrying a megaphone. No doubt a movie director.

Ponderous theatrical scenery trucks. Beauty parlors where trade begins shortly before midnight. The wan, gray beggars of Time Square. Yap wagons half filled. The scarred gambling house runner. Victim of a Chinatown hatchet man. The stroll ends.

I never enter a place that calls itself a 'shoppe." Nor do I associate with newspapermen who call themselves "journalists." Irvin Cobb is still content to be called a reporter and one of the fines establishments in New York remains a store. All of this is appropos of finding a man supposed to be very important in the industrial world in "conference." He perhaps doesn't know it but he was to be the topic of a magazine article that would have been very beneficial to him. Indeed, I imagine if such article were marketable he would have paid many thousands of dollars for the tribute. When he was "in conference" I didn't think him worth a line of space. Had he been busy that would have been an entirely different matter. I've been busy myself, despite the tittering. But never "in conference." No, my, no!

They tell of a brash young vaudeville agent—to whom names mean nothing—who had just received an order to book Mrs. Leslie Carter in the two-a-day. He called up the famous actress.

"Hello, Leslie," he said. "This is Jack speaking. Listen, Les, get an act together so when the bell rings you can step on it. Get me?"

New York's youngest pickpocket was picked up on Fifth avenue. He is 12 years old and was in knickerbockers. On the day he was arrested he had been foraging between the south entrance of Central park and the Thirty-fourth street shopping district and had picked up $52.50. He said he had been trained by an East Side Fagin and often averaged $100 a day. He did not lift wallets. He mixed in heavy crowds and extracted loose bills from the pockets of his victims.

The subway station at Fourteenth street is the most prolific source of revenue for pickpockets. There are 12 detectives who do nothing but lookout for them at this point.

CHAIRMANSHIPS IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Ever since the days when the "Covered Wagon" lumbered across the Oregon and the Santa Fe trails the course of empire has been steadily moving westward. This is a truism of the growth of the republic, but it is replete with the song and saga of a nation's history.

And now after several generations, the muse of history is writing another chapter of the story "Westward Ho." Just as the economic center of gravity moved to the Mississippi valley, so now an equally momentous change is taking place in the organization and control of the national legislature.

The change has come unheralded and without official or popular acclaim, but the change itself is one of the most significant phases of present day history. It means that the men of the west have replaced easterners and New Englanders in the seats of the mighty on Capitol Hill, thus upsetting a tradition and establishing a new order of things. Time and death removing old figures played their part in the shifting of the scene.

To appreciate the full extent to which the west is in the saddle today, one need only to refer to a Congressional Directory of 20 years or even 10 years ago and compare it as regards the leadership of the powerful committees of congress with the directory of this last session of the Sixty-eighth congress. Almost without exception the chairmanship of these powerful committees which often control national legislation has passed into the hands of men hailing from the Mississippi valley and beyond. The shifting of power has been much more sweeping in the senate than it has been in the house, despite the popular belief that the former body clings more tenaciously to tradition. The death of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Senator LeBaron Colt, of Rhode Island, accelerated and completed the change in the senate.

The commanding senate figures of two decades ago were almost all easterners. There was no steering committee in those days but a self-constituted little group headed by Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, and the elder Hale, of Maine, controlled policies and legislation and ruled with an iron hand. It is true that men like Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa, sometimes secured a position in the leadership of the body, but this was the exception rather than the rule.

Aldrich, however, was acknowledged leader. His place today is occupied by Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, part Kaw Indian, who as a boy slept with his relatives under the blanket in the wide open spaces of the west. The assistant leader was Hale, of Maine, whose place is now occupied by "Jim" Watson, of Indiana.

CHANGES IN SENATE

But the story is best told by the important committees and the contrast between the men who led them then and now. The committee on agriculture was led by Redfield Proctor, of Vermont. The present chairman of this pivotal committee is Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, and the two men in line for the succession are Senators McNary, of Oregon, and Capper, of Kansas. The finance committee chairmanship was then held by Senator Aldrich. Now it is held by Reed Smoot, of Utah, with Senator Jones, of Washington, and Curtis, of Kansas, in line for this important legislative post. It has been held in more recent years by Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania.

Twenty years ago William P. Frye, of Maine, headed the committee on commerce. Now Wesley Jones, of Washington, has the place. The most honored and sought post of all, the chairmanship of the committee on foreign relations, was held by Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, and more recently by Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. Now it is held by William E. Borah, of Idaho. Interstate commerce was held by Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia. Now it is held by Ellison D. Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, but only because senator Cummins, of Iowa, was president pro tem. of the senate, and Senator La Follette was next. Penrose headed postoffices and postroads, now headed by Senator Sterling, of South Dakota. Immigration was headed by William P. Dillingham, of Vermont, and more recently by Senator Colt of Rhode Island. Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, is the new chairman of the committee. Senator Allison, of Iowa, was chairman of the appropriations committee, which is now headed by Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming. Judiciary was headed by George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, more recently by Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut. The succession has fallen to Senator Cummins, of Iowa. Nathan B. Scott, of West Virginia, headed the committee on Mines and mining. The present chairman is Tasker Oddie, of Nevada.

Only one major committee of the senate is headed today by an easterner, namely, the Military affairs committee, of which James W. Wadsworth, of New York, is chairman. But it is significant of the westward trend, while Mr. Wadsworth is having his lease of power, the next four Republicans in order of seniority all hail from beyond the Mississippi river.

HOUSE TREND THE SAME

While the change in the house of representatives has been less rapid and less sweeping than in the senate, the trend is the same. Starting with the speakership, the most important position in congress, it is significant that two middle-westerners are contestants for the gavel now wielded by Frederick W. Gillett. The outstanding contestants for the honor are Martin Madden, of Illinois, and Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio.

But even in the house, the west has succeeded in establishing its grip on some of the pivotal committees. Take the ways and means, for instance. Its chairman is William B. Green, of Iowa. Even more significant as illustrating the trend is the fact that the next three in order of seniority are all trans-Mississippi men. It would mean that in the normal course of events and with a Republican congress the man who would head the committee from which the national tax bills would in the first instance emerge would be a westerner.

Then, again, take the appropriation committee. Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, is chairman, but in the event that he should be elected speaker of the house the next two Republicans in line are Charles R. Davis, of Minnesota, and Daniel R. Anthony, of Kansas.

The rules committee is headed by Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, but here again the west stands in line for the succession with Royal Johnson, of Suth Dakota, and Frank Scott, of Michigan, leading in seniority of service on the committee.

The judiciary committee has a Pennsylvanian, George S. Graham, at its head, but the next three members are all westerners, namely, Leonidas C. Dyer, of Missouri, William D. Bois, of Iowa, and Charles A. Christopherson, of South Dakota. The important committee on agriculture is headed by an Iowan, Gilbert Haugen while the committee on immigration is headed by Alebt Johnson, of Washington. With Hiram Johnson at the head of the senate immigration and Johnson in the saddle in the house, it seems that the Pacific coast, which is the key to the American immigration policy, now occupies a position of great strategic potentialities from a legislative staidpoint.

This trend of the change of power as sketched is not a thing of today or yesterday. It has been a process of evolution, but the acceleration since the war period has been very marked. However, the country as a whole has been slow to take in the significance of the change. What does it mean? What will be its effect on the legislative battles immediately ahead and on the national policy in the future? This is a matter for speculation. But there is no room for speculation as to the change itself. It means a territorial readjustment of power and a radical difference in the types of men in control, all the difference of tradition and trend of thought between an Aldrich and a Curtis, between a Lodge and a Borah.

Scott-Free Billions

Secretary Mellon reports to congress that our tax-free securities total $13,300,000,000 and are increasing at the rate of $1,000,000,000 a year.

This knowledge should spur congress to action. Nearly everybody, at Washington and elsewhere, is agreed that it is bad public policy—and also bad private policy in the long run—to permit the unrestrained issuance by states, cities and other political units of securities exempt from taxation.

The objections are simple and convincing. Such exemptions enable big fortunes to escape taxation, while small incomes bear the expenses of government issues of public bonds. By drawing billions into such investment, they lessen the volume of funds available for productive enterprise.

It should be an easy matter for congress to order the practice stopped.

Six Planks for Farmers

Louis V. Taber, head of the National Grange and a member of the president's farm commission, has six suggestions for the rehabilitation of agriculture and its maintenance on the same economic principles which have prospered business. They are:

1. Develop better marketing methods.
2. Practice intelligent, informed production.
3. Reduce cost of government.
4. Enforce the laws.
5. Make internal improvements with agriculture in mind.
6. Further organize agricultural interests.

These are simple and straightforward suggestions. Although their declared purpose is to better the farmer's condition, none of them is a wholly selfish proposal Each one would benefit the whole consuming public as well as the section of the public that produces the foodstuffs for all.

French and British Debts

Regarding the proposed payment of the French debt to America, Winston Churchill, chancellor of the British exchequer, says:

"Any payments made by our debtors in Europe to their creditors in the United States should be accompanied by proportionate payments to Britain."

This statement has aroused considerable criticism in the United States. Whether such criticism is called for is questionable. It is to be remembered that Britain lent the other allies more money than America lent her, that France is Britian's chief debtor, that Britain alone of our big debtors has already settled with America, and that it will be hard for her to meet her obligations if her debtors ignore their obligations to her.

"These are matters of conscience for the United States," remarks the London Daily Mail. "The British people hate the whole controversy. But it is vital for them to raise it, for their very existence is at stake. If we pay 1,000,000,000 pounds that we owe and lose 2,000,000,000 pounds that we are owed, then for every man here, as Mr. Bonar Law predicted on the eve of his death, the standard of living will be lowered for a generation."

It is awkward, however, for the United States government to take official notice of such a controversy between Britain and France. It looks like a matter for the conscience of France, rather than America. All that may be reasonably expected of America is not to encourage France in doing anything which would cheat Britain out of payment.

Antiseptic Sunlight

Great Britain, because of its much rain and fog, has shown a particularly keen interest in the making of artificial sunlight, as well as in recent efforts promoting the fullest use of real sunlight by the elmination of preventable smoke.

British scientists, working on both these problems, are said to be making remarkable progress in "actinotherapy," which is the scientists' pleasant way of referring to healing by means of rays of light. These doctors now declare that "the best antiseptic outside the body is sunlight, and the best antiseptic inside the body is sunlit blood." Even one dose of light greatly raises the natural resistance to disease by increasing the power of the white cells in the blood to kill bacteria.

Surely of all ways to combat ill health there is none more attractive than this simple one of working and playing as much as possible in the glorious sunshine.

ALSO AN EMPIRE

Within a short time, says C. D. Burney, aviation expert and member of the British parliament, the farthest point of the British empire will be within 24 hours of London by flying machine.

It is the intention of Britain to draw close together all parts of the empire within an adequate flying fleet, and to do it as quickly as possible.

GOOD FLYERS—BAD MACHINES

Uncle Sam, please take notice.

This also is an empire. It is as far from the south end of Florida to the north end of Alaska and from Bar Harbor, Me., to San Diego?

Americans will please notice these words by Commander Burney, M. P.:

"The whole prestige of Great Britain hitherto has been maintained by implicit belief in the world's supreme navy. I have every hope that this belief will be now transferred to the building of a supreme air fleet."

The country is gradually waking up to our flying machine situation and it needed to wake up.

Secretary Wilbur gives this information: Five hundred airplanes of the navy are useless. And even the remaining 224 that can fly more or less, are all out of date.

You can easily imagine the difference between the flying fleet of this nation and that of Japan, which has 17 factories working night and day turning out up-to-date flying machines, made on the best European models.

Of course, Japan feels friendly toward us, and we feel friendly toward Japan. But some times situations change. It is not pleasant in the light of Secretary Wilbur's statement to read of one of the postoffice flying machines falling to the ground. The brave pilot, Charles Gilbert, was found dead. We have good, courageous flyers. We ought to supply them with machines that won't risk their lives unnecessarily.

BURYING A FAMILY

Katherine Mayo, writing about the Philippines, supplies information worth while. Self appointed "apostles" collect tribute in the name of religion. In one village, refusing to furnish supplies, a family of nine were selected. A deep hole was dug, "the nine prisoners were flung in—grandfather, babies and all. The leader ordered the villagers to shovel back the earth on them, and pack it down soundly."

After this the "apostles" said to the villagers, "Now, we shall have supplies from you. If you do not promptly comply we shall bury more families."

There seems to be some work left for the American public school to do in the Philippines before turning those regions over completely to the natives.

However, native deficiencies do not justify this country in turning the poor creatures over to highly trained American grafters.

SEGREGATE YOUR HENS

Do you keep chickens? Keep them away from other chickens if you can. Europe has sent here a poultry plague for which there is no known cure. Congress voted $100,000 to fight it. Rigid quarantine will help the situation.

Segregate your chickens and beware how you eat raw vegetables, unless cleaned with greatest thoroughness, which isn't easy.

Be cautious, especially about raw lettuce. The French alone know how to prepare that plant, grown in open fields, often with barnyard manure carrying typhoid germs.

Every leaf should be separated from every other leaf and carefully washed. The salad should be mixed in a big bowl, turned over and over, "well fatigued," as the French put it, until every part of every leaf has some of the vinegar on it. Vinegar kills germs.

With vegetables thoroughly boiled, there is, of course, no cause to fear typhoid.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: The Fifth avenue parade. Dancing mamas. Slangy show girls. And doggy blades. More art galleries for meat packers. Tweeds and briar pipes. Jerome D. Kern, the composer. The veranda of the Savoy. And the pleasant spray of the Plaza fountain. The weird cry of geese in the lake lagoon. The Vanderbilts have never washed those upstairs windows. Dapper male dressmakers. Solemn butlers gazing through grilled doorways.

Complexions are now the Camille-like pallor. Courage Camilles! Matinee mobs surging in from cross street. A famous theatrical angel. Pudgy and debonnaire. Cruising taxicabs and automobile flirts. Mumbling mouchers shivering in the cold.

The old fellow who sells white puppies. New York's stingiest millionaire—the hawk nosed old pelican! Darting pigeons in the cathedral eaves. Wonder what I'll look like at 60! Hurry, rush and roar. And most of us pining for a moonlit garden, fiddles and minuet in a leary suburb.

Jewelry shops. Where trifles are priced at thousands of dollars. And always heavy hoofed detectives in the background. New York lights its lamp. And the rush to the dinner and theater begins. Two million pleasure seekers. Like goats leaping from crag to crag on a mountain of disillusion.

The evening lull at Forty-second street. Like a whirlpool suddenly stilled. There's Rudolph Block (Bruno Lessing). Curbstone fruit sellers counting the day's receipts. A man in puttees carrying a megaphone. No doubt a movie director.

Ponderous theatrical scenery trucks. Beauty parlors where trade begins shortly before midnight. The wan, gray beggars of Time Square. Yap wagons half filled. The scarred gambling house runner. Victim of a Chinatown hatchet man. The stroll ends.

I never enter a place that calls itself a 'shoppe." Nor do I associate with newspapermen who call themselves "journalists." Irvin Cobb is still content to be called a reporter and one of the finest establishments in New York remains a store. All of this is appropos of finding a man supposed to be very important in the industrial world in "conference." He perhaps doesn't know it but he was to be the topic of a magazine article that would have been very beneficial to him. Indeed, I imagine if such article were marketable he would have paid many thousands of dollars for the tribute. When he was "in conference" I didn't think him worth a line of space. Had he been busy that would have been an entirely different matter. I've been busy myself, despite the tittering. But never "in conference." No, my, no!

They tell of a brash young vaudeville agent—to whom names mean nothing—who had just received an order to book Mrs. Leslie Carter in the two-a-day. He called up the famous actress.

"Hello, Leslie," he said. "This is Jack speaking. Listen, Les, get an act together so when the bell rings you can step on it. Get me?"

New York's youngest pickpocket was picked up on Fifth avenue. He is 12 years old and was in knickerbockers. On the day he was arrested he had been foraging between the south entrance of Central park and the Thirty-fourth street shopping district and had picked up $52.50. He said he had been trained by an East Side Fagin and often averaged $100 a day. He did not lift wallets. He mixed in heavy crowds and extracted loose bills from the pockets of his victims.

The subway station at Fourteenth street is the most prolific source of revenue for pickpockets. There are 12 detectives who do nothing but lookout for them at this point.

CHAIRMANSHIPS IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Ever since the days when the "Covered Wagon" lumbered across the Oregon and the Santa Fe trails the course of empire has been steadily moving westward. This is a truism of the growth of the republic, but it is replete with the song and saga of a nation's history.

And now after several generations, the muse of history is writing another chapter of the story "Westward Ho." Just as the economic center of gravity moved to the Mississippi valley, so now an equally momentous change is taking place in the organization and control of the national legislature.

The change has come unheralded and without official or popular acclaim, but the change itself is one of the most significant phases of present day history. It means that the men of the west have replaced easterners and New Englanders in the seats of the mighty on Capitol Hill, thus upsetting a tradition and establishing a new order of things. Time and death removing old figures played their part in the shifting of the scene.

To appreciate the full extent to which the west is in the saddle today, one need only to refer to a Congressional Directory of 20 years or even 10 years ago and compare it as regards the leadership of the powerful committees of congress with the directory of this last session of the Sixty-eighth congress. Almost without exception the chairmanship of these powerful committees which often control national legislation has passed into the hands of men hailing from the Mississippi valley and beyond. The shifting of power has been much more sweeping in the senate than it has been in the house, despite the popular belief that the former body clings more tenaciously to tradition. The death of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Senator LeBaron Colt, of Rhode Island, accelerated and completed the change in the senate.

The commanding senate figures of two decades ago were almost all easterners. There was no steering committee in those days but a self-constituted little group headed by Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, and the elder Hale, of Maine, controlled policies and legislation and ruled with an iron hand. It is true that men like Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa, sometimes secured a position in the leadership of the body, but this was the exception rather than the rule.

Aldrich, however, was acknowledged leader. His place today is occupied by Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, part Kaw Indian, who as a boy slept with his relatives under the blanket in the wide open spaces of the west. The assistant leader was Hale, of Maine, whose place is now occupied by "Jim" Watson, of Indiana.

CHANGES IN SENATE

But the story is best told by the important committees and the contrast between the men who led them then and now. The committee on agriculture was led by Redfield Proctor, of Vermont. The present chairman of this pivotal committee is Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, and the two men in line for the succession are Senators McNary, of Oregon, and Capper, of Kansas. The finance committee chairmanship was then held by Senator Aldrich. Now it is held by Reed Smoot, of Utah, with Senator Jones, of Washington, and Curtis, of Kansas, in line for this important legislative post. It has been held in more recent years by Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania.

Twenty years ago William P. Frye, of Maine, headed the committee on commerce. Now Wesley Jones, of Washington, has the place. The most honored and sought post of all, the chairmanship of the committee on foreign relations, was held by Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, and more recently by Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. Now it is held by William E. Borah, of Idaho. Interstate commerce was held by Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia. Now it is held by Ellison D. Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, but only because senator Cummins, of Iowa, was president pro tem. of the senate, and Senator La Follette was next. Penrose headed postoffices and postroads, now headed by Senator Sterling, of South Dakota. Immigration was headed by William P. Dillingham, of Vermont, and more recently by Senator Colt of Rhode Island. Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, is the new chairman of the committee. Senator Allison, of Iowa, was chairman of the appropriations committee, which is now headed by Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming. Judiciary was headed by George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, more recently by Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut. The succession has fallen to Senator Cummins, of Iowa. Nathan B. Scott, of West Virginia, headed the committee on Mines and mining. The present chairman is Tasker Oddie, of Nevada.

Only one major committee of the senate is headed today by an easterner, namely, the Military affairs committee, of which James W. Wadsworth, of New York, is chairman. But it is significant of the westward trend, while Mr. Wadsworth is having his lease of power, the next four Republicans in order of seniority all hail from beyond the Mississippi river.

HOUSE TREND THE SAME

While the change in the house of representatives has been less rapid and less sweeping than in the senate, the trend is the same. Starting with the speakership, the most important position in congress, it is significant that two middle-westerners are contestants for the gavel now wielded by Frederick W. Gillett. The outstanding contestants for the honor are Martin Madden, of Illinois, and Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio.

But even in the house, the west has succeeded in establishing its grip on some of the pivotal committees. Take the ways and means, for instance. Its chairman is William B. Green, of Iowa. Even more significant as illustrating the trend is the fact that the next three in order of seniority are all trans-Mississippi men. It would mean that in the normal course of events and with a Republican congress the man who would head the committee from which the national tax bills would in the first instance emerge would be a westerner.

Then, again, take the appropriation committee. Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, is chairman, but in the event that he should be elected speaker of the house the next two Republicans in line are Charles R. Davis, of Minnesota, and Daniel R. Anthony, of Kansas.

The rules committee is headed by Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, but here again the west stands in line for the succession with Royal Johnson, of Suth Dakota, and Frank Scott, of Michigan, leading in seniority of service on the committee.

The judiciary committee has a Pennsylvanian, George S. Graham, at its head, but the next three members are all westerners, namely, Leonidas C. Dyer, of Missouri, William D. Bois, of Iowa, and Charles A. Christopherson, of South Dakota. The important committee on agriculture is headed by an Iowan, Gilbert Haugen while the committee on immigration is headed by Alebt Johnson, of Washington. With Hiram Johnson at the head of the senate immigration and Johnson in the saddle in the house, it seems that the Pacific coast, which is the key to the American immigration policy, now occupies a position of great strategic potentialities from a legislative staidpoint.

This trend of the change of power as sketched is not a thing of today or yesterday. It has been a process of evolution, but the acceleration since the war period has been very marked. However, the country as a whole has been slow to take in the significance of the change. What does it mean? What will be its effect on the legislative battles immediately ahead and on the national policy in the future? This is a matter for speculation. But there is no room for speculation as to the change itself. It means a territorial readjustment of power and a radical difference in the types of men in control, all the difference of tradition and trend of thought between an Aldrich and a Curtis, between a Lodge and a Borah.

GRAND OPERA TREAT ASSURED

San Carlo Company Will Present "Madame Butterfly."

An exceptional treat is promised an East Liverpool audience on the occasion of the visit of renowned San Carlo Grand Opera company on the night of Thursday, January 15th. Yielding to a general request Fortune Gallo, the popular and obliging impresario, has consented to substitute for the opera of "Rigoletto," originally selected for performance, "Madame Butterfly." The seleceion is especially interesting at the present time, owing to the recent death of the composer, Puccini. There was na work of his which he was prouder than this, and it was given a special performance in Rome at the Constanzi theatre immediately following his death. It is, of course, of especial interest to audiences in this country, as two of the principal characters are American—Lieut. Pinkerton, of the U. S. Navy, and the Consul Sharpless, while the first few bars of "The Star Spangled Banner" prano voice.

As with all Fortune Gallo's producare effectively employed by the composer at various stages of the opera.

The cast will include Elda Vettori, the distinguished dramatic soprano, who has been winning golden opinions from the public and high encomiums from the critics during the recent successful season of the San Carlo company in New York. She will be supported by Giovanni, a recent addition to the San Carlo forces, who has immediately stepped into the front rank as a lyric tenor, and as a graceful and effective actor. The role of the genial consul will be sung by Giuseppe Interrante, one of the finest baritonss now upon the operatic stage. The minor but none the less important and sympathetic character of Suzuki, Madame Butterfly's faithful attendant, will be in the more than competent hands of Ada Salori, who is the possessor of a lovely mezzo-soprano voice.

The production will be handsomely mounted, the Japanese dresses and scenery being exceptionally picteresque. There will be a full orchstra with chorus under the masterful direction of Aldo Franchetti, one of the finest operatic conductors Italy has ever sent to America.

Veterans of Foreign Wars posts of Columbiana County have purchased the James Hammond farm, west of Lisbon for the site of a fresh air camp and sanatorium for disabled veterans, it was announced today.

The farm consists of 160 acres and is located on the Lincoln highway between Lisbon and Hanoverton. leaped to the cardboard ceiling and fiery death fell from above on the struggling, panic-stricken mass of fathers and mothers and children.

The floor caught and flaming death again leaped at the histerical crowd from the floor.

The windows smashed and, in a moment, the whole place was an inferno. Hobart's tragedy was begun and over—so far as its loss of life is concerned—within ten minutes.

Three Brothers are Heroes

How death came from above and dazed those who a moment before were happy revellers was indicated by the fact that almost without exception the injured survivors are burned on the head.

In the jam that became part of the effort to escape the one door became blocked with bodies. Here three brothers, Paul, Silas and Coil Peck, died fighting to get some of the women near them through.

By their side were found the bodies of Mary and Gladys Clements and Mrs. Stephenson, sisters. In Mrs. Stephenson's arms was found the charred body of her infant girl. The baby's brother died nearby.

Claude Bolding of Hobart fought to save the life of Gladys Clements—for they were to have been married Sunday but she was knocked from his arms as they neared the door and he fell, burned and unconscious but living, outside. Bolding's condition is serious. His father, sister and brother lied near the flaming Christmas tree.

Teacher Sacrifices Life

A shoe, and near it some charred bones, was all that was left to identify Florence Terry Hill, the teacher. Around her lay the burned bones of children she had tried to save. Mr. Hill had been but recently married. Her husband is alive, but seriously burned, in one of the improvised hospitals.

One of Mrs. Hill's dearest friends, Miss Kate McNutt, a teacher in an adjoining district, saved her own life and that of her parents when she saw that the flames could not be checked.

"My first thought," she said today 'was to pull down the Christmas tree and smother the fire or throw the tree from the building."

"I tried to tear it from its pedestal but I could not. I then turned back into the screaming mass of people to try to save my parents. I managed to fight my way to the rear of the room where I had left them. My mother, I found burned and crushed near the door, with several writhing bodies on top of her. I managed to drag her from beneath them. I do not know how we gained the door. Outside my mind cleared.

"My father lay unconscious near the door."

Dam Exacts Heavy Toll.

SALTVILLE, Va., Dec. 26.—Rescuers toiled today through thousands of tons of half-frozen muck, searching for victims of the Christmas Eve tragedy which fell on this little community with the breaking of the dam at the Mathieson Alkali works and snuffing out a dozen or more lives.

In the Emergency hospital here are 12 bodies recovered from the indescribable mass, and it is feared that the death list may run to twenty.

Twenty-two persons were listed as missing today and their fate may not be known for days. Several of the bodies recovered were taken from points along the Holston river, nine miles below the broken dam.

The avalanche swept down from the broken dam consisted mostly of lime refuse. It was solid enough to sweep ahead of it in its path houses, fences, barns and vehicles. It was a sticky mass of slow moving death.

Caught in Moving Slush.

Today the entire little valley between the spot where the dam stood and the north fork of the Holston river was covered with the half frozen slush, varying in depth from a few feet to ten in spots.

The dam stood high above the little valley, in which nestled a dozen homes. It consisted principally of refuse hardened by the passage of time, and no one apparently had ever figured on its letting go. Behind this dam was a great accumulated mass of refuse, lime waste from the works, made heavier and soggier by recent rains. The rain started the stuff to "working" and the restless mass finally shoved through the dam and down into the valley, covering everything with a sticky white layer of muck.

Some of those dead were drowned in the river, but most of them perished in the treacherously moving slush.

Pneumonia Is Feared.

The bodies recovered and identified thus far are:

Henry Prater, and wife and son.
James Prater and wife.
W. H. Scott.
Mrs. Luther Clear and son.
Opal Pauley.

Pneumonia is feared in many cases now in the hospital, and doctors today said it was probable there would be more deaths. The work was carried on in bitter cold. The exposure was great.

Mellon Sees Revival

and orderly program of handling our governmental affairs."

"It is only through hard work, economy and sound policies that we have a right to expect true progress", Mellon asserted.

During the last four years the administration has been occupied with the problem of reconstruction and this has succeeded, in Mellon's opinion. It was pointed out that in 1921 when the adjustment of government finances to peace time basis started, there existed a staggering public debt of $24,000,000,000.

Expenditures were reduced from about $6,500,000,000 during the fiscal year of 1921 to $3,500,000,000 iln 1924 through the establishment of the budget.

"In 1920 federal taxes collected amounted to $54 per capita next year, they should be but $27, a cut of exactly one half", Mellon said.

"At the same time the public debt has been reduced $2,800,000,000 since march 1, 1921, and provision made in each year's budget for debt retirements of about $500,000,000 chargeable against ordinary receipts."

istration of typhus germs, either in food or hypodermically.

The determination of the latter, physicians say, will require considerable time and may not be possible at all.

A whole field of ugly insinuation had been opened up today by the probe. This ran back as far as the death of McClintock's mother, which reports reaching the coroner's office, intimated might bear investigation. There was no indication that steps to push the inquiry in that direction had been taken as yet, although officials of the coroner's office admitted that should the report of the physicians show that McClintock came to other than a natural death, an attempt to pry back through the years to the death of the mother would be made.

Foster Father Burns Home.

In a statement given out before he left Albuquerque, Shepherd declared that he would place himself and Mrs. Shepherd at the disposal of the coroner's office as soon as he arrived in Chicago and that he would do all in his power to aid the probe.

He submitted to interviews by newspapermen freely, and told them he would answer as best he could all the questions they cared to ask him. In the course of the questioning he denied that he had ever expressed worry as to what was to become of him and Mrs. Shepherd in the event young McClintock married as has been alleged by the forces in the investigation.

land. Arrangements had been made to take him to the county jail at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Chief Seevers left the city hall at noon, leaving Henry Wilson, of Second street, Chester, on guard. A half-hour later when the chief returned, he learned the prisoner was missing. An investigation disclosed the manner in which he had made his getaway.

Ohio Police On Lookout.

Wilson was questioned by the Chief, but he denied having assisted the prisoner to make his escape. The iron pipe which the police declare was used in prying loose the bar was not kept in the cell, the chief claims. Wilson was ordered to appear before Justice Allison this afternoon to be quizzed further regarding the jail delivery.

Chief Seevers yesterday afternoon scoured the town and rural districts, but could find no trace of the prisoner. He had been gone about ten minutes when the escape was discovered.

East Liverpool police have been asked to keep a lookout for Murphy as it is thought he may return to the Ohio side of the river.

Urge Parcel Post Rate Jump to Pay P. O. Pay Increases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—The suggestion that Parcel Post rates be increased to absorb any deficit in the post office department caused by salary boosts was made to the joint congressional postal committee today by George C. Lucas, New York, director of transportation for the National Publishers' Association.

Lucas proposed specifically that the government in addition to regular rates, fix a five cent service charge on each parcel post package. This would result in increased revenues that would offset salary advances, he declared, and would not necessitate boost of rates on second class mail, newspapers and magazines.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 26—Francies E. Bush, alias Burch, 30, and his wife, Ruth, 25, were arrested today, after they had been pointed out by a detective as wanted in connection with a $17,000 holdup in Cleveland on November 26.

Mrs. Bush was lavishly attired in a mink coat and fashionable gown. Q. When was Christmas first celebrated?—J. A.

A. It is not definitely known when Christmas was first celebrated. The institution of the festival is attributed to Telesphorus, who flourished in the reign of Antoninus Pius (131-161 A. D.). This, however, is not historical. It has often been objected that December 25 can not be the true date of the birth of Christ, for it is then the rainy season in Palestine and shepherds would scarcely have been watching their sheep by night in the fields. The reason for the final choice of December 25 can not now be determined. A widespread feast of the Great Mother may have influenced the decision, also the desire to place a Christian feast in opposition to the Roman feast of "Sol investus" at the winter solstice. A tthe winter solstice, the Germans held their great Yule feast in commemoration of the return of the fiery sun, and many of the beliefs and usages of the old Germans and Romans relating to this matter passed from heathenism to Christianity and have survived to the present day. As Christianity spread, the fast of the winter solstice, the time when the day begins to increase, and light to triumph over darkness, was changed into the Feast of Christ, the Light of Life.

Infirmary Inmates Forced Into Cold By Canton Blaze

CANTON, Dec. 26.—Fire, started by a short circuit in the electric wiring caused a lot of excitement among the inmates of the Stark county infirmary at 3 o'clock this morning. The fire fighting force at the infirmary were handicapped by frozen chemical tanks and fire hydrants and the local department was called into service. The patients on the third floor, where the fire started, were rescued. About $1,500 worth of damage was done to the building before the flames were extinguished.

The sudden zero weather and consequent forcing of heating plants were responsible for a number of fires in the city. Many people were forced into the intense cold, but no lives were lost in any of the blazes.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—New forward movements in the copper, motor and industrial stocks were inaugurated in the stock market today. The re-opening after the Christmas holidays, found the traders generally committed to the buying side; there was little profit taking in the early trading and no selling pressure from the bears. Numerous stocks started the day with gains of more than a point over Wednesday's closing figures, and recoveries in stocks which had been heavily sold.

The rally was led by the same stocks as had been prominent in Wednesday's session. General motors and Mack truck in the motors, Anaconda, Chile, Kennecott in the coppers; American locomotive and Baldwin in the equipment; Republic and Gulf states in the independent steels, Stewart Warner in the Motors accessories; Cuban sugar, stocks, cast iron pipe, American Can and General Electric in the high-priced industrials; Pan-American in the oils and radio corporation and Universal pipe in the specialties. Good buying demand for these stocks was soon reflected in a gradual trend to higher prices, which in some stocks resulted in gains of 2 to 4 points and a new high level for the year.

Most of the year-end industrial reports were favorable, though earnings as a rule were smaller than in 1923. Otis elevator reported the best year since, 1920, Packard motor car showed a decided increase in cash and liquid resources; other companies reported they were going into the new year in strong position; money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent; grain and cotton markets were generally quiet.

United States steel took the leadership of the industrials and went up to a new high for 1924, at 119 5-8, an an active buying movement was inaugurated, in which the independent steel and the coppers were prominent, with sugar stocks and a few of the oils also participating. Coppers enjoyed the most active markets in a month or more, with higher prices in all the activity stocks while gulf states steel, Republic and other steels gained from 1 to 2 points.

In the Emergency hospital here are 12 bodies recovered from the indescribable mass, and it is feared that the death list may run to twenty.

Twenty-two persons were listed as missing today and their fate may not be known for days. Several of the bodies recovered were taken from points along the Holston river, nine miles below the broken dam.

The avalanche swept down from the broken dam consisted mostly of lime refuse. It was solid enough to sweep ahead of it in its path houses, fences, barns and vehicles. It was a sticky mass of slow moving death.

Caught In Moving Slush.

Today the entire little valley between the spot where the dam stood and the north fork of the Holston river was covered with the half frozen slush, varying in depth from a few feet to ten in spots.

The dam stood high above the little valley, in which nestled a dozen homes. It consisted principally of refuse hardened by the passage of time, and no one apparently had ever figured on its letting go. Behind this dam was a great accumulated mass of refuse, lime waste from the works, made heavier and soggier by recent rains. The rain started the stuff to "working" and the restless mass finally shoved through the dam and down into the valley, covering everything with a sticky white layer of muck.

Some of those dead were drowned in the river, but most of them perished in the treacherously moving slush.

Pneumonia Is Feared.

The bodies recovered and identified thus far are:

Henry Prater, and wife and son.
James Prater and wife.
W. H. Scott.
Mrs. Luther Clear and son.
Opal Pauley.

Pneumonia is feared in many cases now in the hospital, and doctors today said it was probable there would be more deaths. The work was carried on in biting cold. The exposure was great.

and orderly program of handling our governmental affairs."

"It is only through hard work, economy and sound policies that we have a right to expect true progress", Mellon asserted.

During the last four years the administration has been occupied with the problem of reconstruction and this has succeeded, in Mellon's opinion. It was pointed out that in 1921 when the adjustment of government finances to peace time basis started, there existed a staggering public debt of $24,000,000,000.

Expenditures were reduced from about $6,500,000,000 during the fiscal year of 1921 to $3,500,000,000 iln 1924 through the establishment of the budget.

"In 1920 federal taxes collected amounted to $54 per capita next year, they should be but $27, a cut of exactly one half", Mellon said.

"At the same time the public debt has been reduced $2,800,000,000 since march 1, 1921, and provision made in each year's budget for debt retirements of about $500,000,000 chargeable against ordinary receipts."

istration of typhus germs, either in food or hypodermically.

The determination of the latter, physicians say, will require considerable time and may not be possible at all.

A whole field of ugly insinuation had been opened up today by the probe. This ran back as far as the death of McClintock's mother, which reports reaching the coroner's office, intimated might bear investigation. There was no indication that steps to push the inquiry in that direction had been taken as yet, although officials of the coroner's office admitted that should the report of the physicians show that McClintock came to other than a natural death, an attempt to pry back through the years to the death of the mother would be made.

Foster Father Burns Home.

In a statement given out before he left Albuquerque, Shepherd declared that he would place himself and Mrs. Shepherd at the disposal of the coroner's office as soon as he arrived in Chicago and that he would do all in his power to aid the probe.

He submitted to interviews by newspapermen freely, and told them he would answer as best he could all the questions they cared to ask him. In the course of the questioning he denied that he had ever expressed worry as to what was to become of him and Mrs. Shepherd in the event young McClintock married as has been alleged by the forces in the investigation.

land. Arrangements had been made to take him to the county jail at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Chief Seevers left the city hall at noon, leaving Henry Wilson, of Second street, Chester, on guard. A half-hour later when the chief returned, he learned the prisoner was missing. An investigation disclosed the manner in which he had made his getaway.

Ohio Police On Lookout.

Wilson was questioned by the Chief, but he denied having assisted the prisoner to make his escape. The iron pipe which the police declare was used in prying loose the bar was not kept in the cell, the chief claims. Wilson was ordered to appear before Justice Allison this afternoon to be quizzed further regarding the jail delivery.

Chief Seevers yesterday afternoon scoured the town and rural districts, but could find no trace of the prisoner. He had been gone about ten minutes when the escape was discovered.

East Liverpool police have been asked to keep a lookout for Murphy as it is thought he may return to the Ohio side of the river.

Urge Parcel Post Rate Jump to Pay P. O. Pay Increases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—The suggestion that Parcel Post rates be increased to absorb any deficit in the post office department caused by salary boosts was made to the joint congressional postal committee today by George C. Lucas, New York, director of transportation for the National Publishers' Association.

Lucas proposed specifically that the government in addition to regular rates, fix a five cent service charge on each parcel post package. This would result in increased revenues that would offset salary advances, he declared, and would not necessitate boost of rates on second class mail, newspapers and magazines.

Man and His Wife Held in Detroit as Suspects in Holdup

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 26—Francies E. Bush, alias Burch, 30, and his wife, Ruth, 25, were arrested today, after they had been pointed out by a detective as wanted in connection with a $17,000 holdup in Cleveland on November 26.

Two men, George Schorr and Cameron Moore, were arrested here two weeks ago, returned to Cleveland and are now serving sentences of 25 years each for the holdup.

Mrs. Bush was lavishly attired in a mink coat and fashionable gown. She was alleged to have waited in an automobile a short distance from the scene of the hold-up, the Lakewood-Ohio branch of the Cleveland Trust company. After the robbery, the men abandoned their own car, it is said, and were driven away by Mrs. Buhs, the gang believing they would thus escape indentification.

Q. When was Christmas first celebrated?—J. A.

A. It is not definitely known when Christmas was first celebrated. The institution of the festival is attributed to Telesphorus, who flourished in the reign of Antoninus Pius (131-161 A. D.). This, however, is not historical. It has often been objected that December 25 can not be the true date of the birth of Christ, for it is then the rainy season in Palestine and shepherds would scarcely have been watching their sheep by night in the fields. The reason for the final choice of December 25 can not now be determined. A widespread feast of the Great Mother may have influenced the decision, also the desire to place a Christian feast in opposition to the Roman feast of "Sol investus" at the winter solstice. A tthe winter solstice, the Germans held their great Yule feast in commemoration of the return of the fiery sun, and many of the beliefs and usages of the old Germans and Romans relating to this matter passed from heathenism to Christianity and have survived to the present day. As Christianity spread, the fast of the winter solstice, the time when the day begins to increase, and light to triumph over darkness, was changed into the Feast of Christ, the Light of Life.

Infirmary Inmates Forced Into Cold By Canton Blaze

CANTON, Dec. 26.—Fire, started by a short circuit in the electric wiring caused a lot of excitement among the inmates of the Stark county infirmary at 3 o'clock this morning. The fire fighting force at the infirmary were handicapped by frozen chemical tanks and fire hydrants and the local department was called into service. The patients on the third floor, where the fire started, were rescued. About $1,500 worth of damage was done to the building before the flames were extinguished.

The sudden zero weather and consequent forcing of heating plants were responsible for a number of fires in the city. Many people were forced into the intense cold, but no lives were lost in any of the blazes.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—New forward movements in the copper, motor and industrial stocks were inaugurated in the stock market today. The re-opening after the Christmas holidays, found the traders generally committed to the buying side; there was little profit taking in the early trading and no selling pressure from the bears. Numerous stocks started the day with gains of more than a point over Wednesday's closing figures, and recoveries in stocks which had been heavily sold.

The rally was led by the same stocks as had been prominent in Wednesday's session. General motors and Mack truck in the motors, Anaconda, Chile, Kennecott in the coppers; American locomotive and Baldwin in the equipment; Republic and Gulf states in the independent steels, Stewart Warner in the Motors accessories; Cuban sugar, stocks, cast iron pipe, American Can and General Electric in the high-priced industrials; Pan-American in the oils and radio corporation and Universal pipe in the specialties. Good buying demand for these stocks was soon reflected in a gradual trend to higher prices, which in some stocks resulted in gains of 2 to 4 points and a new high level for the year.

Most of the year-end industrial reports were favorable, though earnings as a rule were smaller than in 1923. Otis elevator reported the best year since, 1920, Packard motor car showed a decided increase in cash and liquid resources; other companies reported they were going into the new year in strong position; money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent; grain and cotton markets were generally quiet.

United States steel took the leadership of the industrials and went up to a new high for 1924, at 119 5-8, an an active buying movement was inaugurated, in which the independent steel and the coppers were prominent, with sugar stocks and a few of the oils also participating. Coppers enjoyed the most active markets in a month or more, with higher prices in all the activity stocks while gulf states steel, Republic and other steels gained from 1 to 2 points.

FARM BOUGHT BY WAR VETS

Get Lisbon Site for Fresh Air Camp and Sanatorium.

Veterans of Foreign Wars posts of Columbiana County have purchased the James Hammond farm, west of Lisbon for the site of a fresh air camp and sanatorium for disabled veterans, it was announced today.

The farm consists of 160 acres and is located on the Lincoln highway between Lisbon and Hanoverton. In addition to using the residence now on the farm, it is proposed to erect a number of cottages for use of the veterans and members of their families. A large part of the land is to be converted into a lake affording fishing, bathing and boating accommodations.

The farm house, which is to be remodeled during the coming year, will be used as a club house.

67 Dead, 40 Hurt

leaped to the cardboard ceiling and fiery death fell from above on the struggling, panic-stricken mass of fathers and mothers and children.

The floor caught and flaming death again leaped at the histerical crowd from the floor.

The windows smashed and, in a moment, the whole place was an inferno. Hobart's tragedy was begun and over—so far as its loss of life is concerned—within ten minutes.

Three Brothers are Heroes

How death came from above and dazed those who a moment before were happy revellers was indicated by the fact that almost without exception the injured survivors are burned on the head.

In the jam that became part of the effort to escape the one door became blocked with bodies. Here three brothers, Paul, Silas and Coil Peck, died fighting to get some of the women near them through.

By their side were found the bodies of Mary and Gladys Clements and Mrs. Stephenson, sisters. In Mrs. Stephenson's arms was found the charred body of her infant girl. The baby's brother died nearby.

Claude Bolding of Hobart fought to save the life of Gladys Clements—for they were to have been married Sunday but she was knocked from his arms as they neared the door and he fell, burned and unconscious but living, outside. Bolding's condition is serious. His father, sister and brother died near the flaming Christmas tree.

Teacher Sacrifices Life

A shoe, and near it some charred bones, was all that was left to identify Florence Terry Hill, the teacher. Around her lay the burned bones of children she had tried to save. Mr. Hill had been but recently married. Her husband is alive, but seriously burned, in one of the improvised hospitals.

One of Mrs. Hill's dearest friends, Miss Kate McNutt, a teacher in an adjoining district, saved her own life and that of her parents when she saw that the flames could not be checked.

"My first thought," she said today "was to pull down the Christmas tree and smother the fire or throw the tree from the building."

"I tried to tear it from its pedestal but I could not. I then turned back into the screaming mass of people to try to save my parents. I managed to fight my way to the rear of the room where I had left them. My mother, I found burned and crushed near the door, with several writhing bodies on top of her. I managed to drag her from beneath them. I do not know how we gained the door. Outside my mind cleared.

"My father lay unconscious near the door."

Dam Exacts Heavy Toll.

SALTVILLE, Va., Dec. 26.—Rescuers toiled today through thousands of tons of half-frozen muck, searching for victims of the Christmas Eve tragedy which fell on this little community with the breaking of the dam at the Mathieson Alkali works and snuffing out a dozen or more lives.

In the Emergency hospital here are 12 bodies recovered from the indescribable mass, and it is feared that the death list may run to twenty.

Twenty-two persons were listed as missing today and their fate may not be known for days. Several of the bodies recovered were taken from points along the Holston river, nine miles below the broken dam.

The avalanche swept down from the broken dam consisted mostly of lime refuse. It was solid enough to sweep ahead of it in its path houses, fences, barns and vehicles. It was a sticky mass of slow moving death.

Caught in Moving Slush.

Today the entire little valley between the spot where the dam stood and the north fork of the Holston river was covered with the half frozen slush, varying in depth from a few feet to ten in spots.

The dam stood high above the little valley, in which nestled a dozen homes. It consisted principally of refuse hardened by the passage of time, and no one apparently had ever figured on its letting go. Behind this dam was a great accumulated mass of refuse, lime waste from the works, made heavier and soggier by recent rains. The rain started the stuff to "working" and the restless mass finally shoved through the dam and down into the valley, covering everything with a sticky white layer of muck.

Some of those dead were drowned in the river, but most of them perished in the treacherously moving slush.

Pneumonia Is Feared.

The bodies recovered and identified thus far are:

Henry Prater, and wife and son.
James Prater and wife.
W. H. Scott.
Mrs. Luther Clear and son.
Opal Pauley.

Pneumonia is feared in many cases now in the hospital, and doctors today said it was probable there would be more deaths. The work was carried on by lantern light. The exposure was great.

In a statement given out before he left Albuquerque, Shepherd declared that he would place himself and Mrs. Shepherd at the disposal of the coroner's office as soon as he arrived in Chicago and that he would do all in his power to aid the probe.

He submitted to interviews by newspapermen freely, and told them he would answer as best he could all the questions they cared to ask him. In the course of the questioning he denied that he had ever expressed worry as to what was to become of him and Mrs. Shepherd in the event young McClintock married as has been alleged by the forces in the investigation.

Wilson was ordered to appear before Justice Allison this afternoon to be quizzed further regarding the jail delivery.

Chief Seevers yesterday afternoon scoured the town and rural districts, but could find no trace of the prisoner. He had been gone about ten minutes when the escape was discovered.

Urge Parcel Post Rate Jump to Pay P. O. Pay Increases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—The suggestion that Parcel Post rates be increased to absorb any deficit in the post office department caused by salary boosts was made to the joint congressional postal committee today by George C. Lucas, New York, director of transportation for the National Publishers' Association.

Lucas proposed specifically that the government in addition to regular rates, fix a five cent service charge on each parcel post package. This would result in increased revenues that would offset salary advances, he declared, and would not necessitate boost of rates on second class mail, newspapers and magazines.

Q. When was Christmas first celebrated?—J. A.

A. It is not definitely known when Christmas was first celebrated. The institution of the festival is attributed to Telesphorus, who flourished in the reign of Antoninus Pius (131-161 A. D.). This, however, is not historical. It has often been objected that December 25 can not be the true date of the birth of Christ, for it is then the rainy season in Palestine and shepherds would scarcely have been watching their sheep by night in the fields. The reason for the final choice of December 25 can not now be determined. A widespread feast of the Great Mother may have influenced the decision, also the desire to place a Christian feast in opposition to the Roman feast of "Sol investus" at the winter solstice. A tthe winter solstice, the Germans held their great Yule feast in commemoration of the return of the fiery sun, and many of the beliefs and usages of the old Germans and Romans relating to this matter passed from heathenism to Christianity and have survived to the present day. As Christianity spread, the fast of the winter solstice, the time when the day begins to increase, and light to triumph over darkness, was changed into the Feast of Christ, the Light of Life.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—New forward movements in the copper, motor and industrial stocks were inaugurated in the stock market today. The re-opening after the Christmas holidays, found the traders generally committed to the buying side; there was little profit taking in the early trading and no selling pressure from the bears. Numerous stocks started the day with gains of more than a point over Wednesday's closing figures, and recoveries in stocks which had been heavily sold.

The rally was led by the same stocks as had been prominent in Wednesday's session. General motors and Mack truck in the motors, Anaconda, Chile, Kennecott in the coppers; American locomotive and Baldwin in the equipment; Republic and Gulf states in the independent steels, Stewart Warner in the Motors accessories; Cuban sugar, stocks, cast iron pipe, American Can and General Electric in the high-priced industrials; Pan-American in the oils and radio corporation and Universal pipe in the specialties. Good buying demand for these stocks was soon reflected in a gradual trend to higher prices, which in some stocks resulted in gains of 2 to 4 points and a new high level for the year.

Most of the year-end industrial reports were favorable, though earnings as a rule were smaller than in 1923. Otis elevator reported the best year since, 1920, Packard motor car showed a decided increase in cash and liquid resources; other companies reported they were going into the new year in strong position; money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent; grain and cotton markets were generally quiet.

United States steel took the leadership of the industrials and went up to a new high for 1924, at 119 5-8, an an active buying movement was inaugurated, in which the independent steel and the coppers were prominent, with sugar stocks and a few of the oils also participating. Coppers enjoyed the most active markets in a month or more, with higher prices in all the activity stocks while gulf states steel, Republic and other steels gained from 1 to 2 points.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Shall She Go With Other Boys?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man for six months. He does not live here but he comes to see me every two weeks. Every time he comes he says he loves me dearly and hates more and more to leave me. He writes every other day.

He says he does not go with any other girls now and hasn't in two or three months. I go with a girl and her boy friend often. Last night we went to a show. The boy brought another boy with him for me to go with and so I did.

We had a most delightful time and saw a good show. This young man wants to come again to see me. Other boy friends want to go with me but I don't feel just right on the matter. Please advise me.

UNDECIDED.

Unless you are betrothed you are free to go with as many young men as you want to. When your out-of-town friend tells you again that he does not go with other girls, say that you want him to feel perfectly free to do so. In case he is angry because you have other boy friends, you will have to make your own choice in the matter and make up your mind whether or not he means enough to you to give up every one else.

Man's Children Object.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman of 44 and have been keeping company with a gentleman 20 years older than myself for almost one year. He would like to have me marry him, but I don't know what to do about it. He is a good man and a good worker and has always been fair with me. One thing is that he has children who are against his marrying me. They tell him almost anything to keep him away from me. I don't see why they interfere as they are all married and have their homes. He doesn't bother them. I also have children and they are all taking care of themselves and they don't care what I do as they think this man is just all right. I wouldn't like to marry him and have trouble, as I have had plenty of that all my life. I want to live peaceably if I get married. Please advise me what to do. I only see him once a week as we live so far apart. G. B. R.

You certainly have reason to hesitate about marrying the man unless you love him so much that you are willing to make the best of the treatment you receive from his children. Also you have to face the fact he is a great deal older than you are and that you may have to take care of him in his old age. Love would overcome all obstacles, but such a marriage without love would doubtless prove a failure.

A Word to the Wise

"In March I was called to the bedside of my sister in Brewton, Alabama. She was given up to die and was almost dead. Talked in a whisper. Doctors said nothing but an operation would save her and she was too weak for that. Her color was yellow as a pumpkin and she was filled with gas. That day I heard of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and went and got a bottle for her. In three weeks she was able to be about and walked a mile to church. I am praising your medicine to everyone." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. Elizabeth A. Thompson

Shall She Go With Other Boys?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man for six months. He does not live here but he comes to see me every two weeks. Every time he comes he says he loves me dearly and hates more and more to leave me. He writes every other day.

He says he does not go with any other girls now and hasn't in two or three months. I go with a girl and her boy friend often. Last night we went to a show. The boy brought another boy with him for me to go with and so I did.

We had a most delightful time and saw a good show. This young man wants to come again to see me. Other boy friends want to go with me but I don't feel just right on the matter. Please advise me.

UNDECIDED.

Unless you are betrothed you are free to go with as many young men as you want to. When your out-of-town friend tells you again that he does not go with other girls, say that you want him to feel perfectly free to do so. In case he is angry because you have other boy friends, you will have to make your own choice in the matter and make up your mind whether or not he means enough to you to give up every one else.

Man's Children Object.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman of 44 and have been keeping company with a gentleman 20 years older than myself for almost one year. He would like to have me marry him, but I don't know what to do about it. He is a good man and a good worker and has always been fair with me. One thing is that he has children who are against his marrying me. They tell him almost anything to keep him away from me. I don't see why they interfere as they are all married and have their homes. He doesn't bother them. I also have children and they are all taking care of themselves and they don't care what I do as they think this man is just all right. I wouldn't like to marry him and have trouble, as I have had plenty of that all my life. I want to live peaceably if I get married. Please advise me what to do. I only see him once a week as we live so far apart. G. B. R.

You certainly have reason to hesitate about marrying the man unless you love him so much that you are willing to make the best of the treatment you receive from his children. Also you have to face the fact he is a great deal older than you are and that you may have to take care of him in his old age. Love would overcome all obstacles, but such a marriage without love would doubtless prove a failure.

A Word to the Wise

"In March I was called to the bedside of my sister in Brewton, Alabama. She was given up to die and was almost dead. Talked in a whisper. Doctors said nothing but an operation would save her and she was too weak for that. Her color was yellow as a pumpkin and she was filled with gas. That day I heard of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and went and got a bottle for her. In three weeks she was able to be about and walked a mile to church. I am praising your medicine to everyone." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

WEATHER HURT POTATO CROP

Certified Seed Users Harvest Biggest Yield in County.

Failure of the potato crop in Columbiana county during the past year is said by growers to have been due solely to weather conditions. The seed the growers has been pronounced good in every respect, and those who used certified seed harvested a greater yield than those growers did who used "just seed."

As an illustration of this yield, it has been pointed out that growers who planted certified Rural Russetts had an average yield of 185 bushels to the acre. Certified Rural New Yorker seed spuds averaged 173 bushels per acre in this county during the last year.

There are indications that Columbiana county will continue to increase its potato harvest anually for some years to come, as growers now admit that the crop is a profitable one under normal conditions, and inasmuch as the county is considered right in the heart of a vast consuming market, quick sales are possible and at the best markets. Because of the location of the growing territory with reference to the point of distribution, a low freight rate is to be had, and this results in a greater return to the grower.

Last season 9,121 bushels of certified seed potatoes were planted in Columbiana county, of which 8,185 bushels were of the Rural New Yorker variety and obtained from Wisconsin. Then there were shipped itno the county 936 bushels of Minnesota certified Early Ohio certified seed stock.

In counties north of Columbiana, where certified seed has been used by growers for some years, the growers in these counties are now reaching out to get some of the certified seed business that has just been going to Minnesota and Wisconsin. Ohio certified seed spuds have been pronounced the equal of the seed obtained from the two northwestern states.

Columbiana county potato growers are interested now in following the suggestions of the state department of agriculture in planting and growing their potato crops. It is by following these suggestions that the yield in this county has been so greatly increased. More care is now being used in selecting the ground where the crop is to be grown and also to spraying the latter, being for the purpose of killing blight.

There are close to 600 potato growers in Columbiana county, and many of these are interested in growing large commercial crops.

Another interesting activity of Columbiana county farmers is that of wheat standardization. When it is remembered that in 1920 only 20 farmers in this county had 184 acres in standard wheat, such as the Trumbull variety, and that this small number increased to 538 growers in 1924, it is proven that the use of standard wheat possesses considerable merit.

It has been disclosed that from the 20 farmers sowing 184 acres of Trumbull wheat in 1920, in 1921 there were 84 farmers having 450 acres in such seed. So successful was the harvest from these acres that year, that in 1922 there were 312 farmers sowing 3,408 acres in Trumbull wheat. Still another advance was shown in 1923 when 400 farmers planted 4,060 acres in Trumbull and during the past year there was a greater increase in the use of such a standard variety, when there were 6,010 acres sown by 538 farmers. This occasions no surprise, however, as standard Trumbull wheat bvgns a greater return to the growers than any other variety.

An effort is also being made in this county to select a better variety of oats—a variety that is best suitable to the soil with reference to its productivity. This has resulted in the introduction of certified Miami seed oats. During 1924 32 farmers used this seed on 149 acres which showed a yield of 63 bushels per acre.

WEATHER HURT POTATO CROP

Certified Seed Users Harvest Biggest Yield in County.

Failure of the potato crop in Columbiana county during the past year is said by growers to have been due solely to weather conditions. The seed the growers has been pronounced good in every respect, and those who used certified seed harvested a greater yield than those growers did who used "just seed."

As an illustration of this yield, it has been pointed out that growers who planted certified Rural Russetts had an average yield of 185 bushels to the acre. Certified Rural New Yorker seed spuds averaged 173 bushels per acre in this county during the last year.

There are indications that Columbiana county will continue to increase its potato harvest anually for some years to come, as growers now admit that the crop is a profitable one under normal conditions, and inasmuch as the county is considered right in the heart of a vast consuming market, quick sales are possible and at the best markets. Because of the location of the growing territory with reference to the point of distribution, a low freight rate is to be had, and this results in a greater return to the grower.

Last season 9,121 bushels of certified seed potatoes were planted in Columbiana county, of which 8,185 bushels were of the Rural New Yorker variety and obtained from Wisconsin. Then there were shipped itno the county 936 bushels of Minnesota certified Early Ohio certified seed stock.

In counties north of Columbiana, where certified seed has been used by growers for some years, the growers in these counties are now reaching out to get some of the certified seed business that has just been going to Minnesota and Wisconsin. Ohio certified seed spuds have been pronounced the equal of the seed obtained from the two northwestern states.

Columbiana county potato growers are interested now in following the suggestions of the state department of agriculture in planting and growing their potato crops. It is by following these suggestions that the yield in this county has been so greatly increased. More care is now being used in selecting the ground where the crop is to be grown and also to spraying the latter, being for the purpose of killing blight.

There are close to 600 potato growers in Columbiana county, and many of these are interested in growing large commercial crops.

Another interesting activity of Columbiana county farmers is that of wheat standardization. When it is remembered that in 1920 only 20 farmers in this county had 184 acres in standard wheat, such as the Trumbull variety, and that this small number increased to 538 growers in 1924, it is proven that the use of standard wheat possesses considerable merit.

It has been disclosed that from the 20 farmers sowing 184 acres of Trumbull wheat in 1920, in 1921 there were 84 farmers having 450 acres in such seed. So successful was the harvest from these acres that year, that in 1922 there were 312 farmers sowing 3,408 acres in Trumbull wheat. Still another advance was shown in 1923 when 400 farmers planted 4,060 acres in Trumbull and during the past year there was a greater increase in the use of such a standard variety, when there were 6,610 acres sown by 538 farmers. This occasions no surprise, however, as standard Trumbull wheat bvegns a greater return to the growers than any other variety.

An effort is also being made in this county to select a better variety of oats—a variety that is best suitable to the soil with reference to its productivity. This has resulted in the introduction of certified Miami seed oats. During 1924 32 farmers used this seed on 149 acres which showed a yield of 63 bushels per acre.

TWO DAMAGE SUITS FILED IN COURT

Two damage actions aggregating $20,312.50 have been filed in commos pleas court against Margaret Pitts, 81 Falls Avenue, Youngstown, as a result of an automobile accident on the Cox Highway about a mile east of Columbiana at 6:45 o'clock the morning of June 25 last.

C. E. Brook, the owner of a coupe was driving west on the Cox Highway at that time, and his passenger was Roy Snyder. On a curve east of Columbiana a large truck owned by the defendant stopped suddenly, and to avoid a collision with the truck, Brook applied the brakes to his car and it skidded, the car going into a ditch and against the abutment of a concrete bridge.

The car was partially wrecked.

Snyder was badly injured. He has sued the defendant for $10,035, and Brook has filed his claim for $10,277.50. Brook in addition to asking $10,000 damages asks $200 as damage to his car and $27.50 damage to the suit of clothes he wore at the time of the accident.

Listing Orchards.

A census of all commercial orchards in Columbiana county is now being taken by a representative of the statistical department of the Ohio department of agriculture. Orchards f all characteg are to be listed. When the Ohio census is finished the complete report will be forwarded to Washington.

Christmas Marriage License Rush Falls Below Last Year

For a few hours before the office of Probate Judge Lodge Riddle closed Wednesday afternoon, there was the expected Christmas rush for marriage licenses, but the number issued fell quite short of the record for the "closing hours" for the corresponding period last year.

Harry W. Crubaugh, owner of the Crubaugh garage, Lincoln highway, south of Lisbon, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley W. Crubaugh of Madison township, owners of the farm where the Morgan memorial marker is erected, and Miss Sylvia Nettrour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Nettrour of Leetonia, were granted a marriage license. The couple returned to Leetonia, where they were married by the Rev. Brilhart. Mr. and Mrs. Crubaugh will make their home in Lisbon.

A marriage license was granted to Russell Sanders, employed as a potter and residing at Washingtonville, and Miss Ruth Yarian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Yarian of Columbiana.

There are indications that Columbiana county will continue to increase its potato harvest anually for some years to come, as growers now admit that the crop is a profitable one under normal conditions, and inasmuch as the county is considered right in the heart of a vast consuming market, quick sales are possible and at the best markets. Because of the location of the growing territory with reference to the point of distribution, a low freight rate is to be had, and this results in a greater return to the grower.

William Savors, a student, and Miss Inez Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pearson, both of East Liverpool, secured a marriage license and returned to East Liverpool, where they were married by the ev. Travis.

James Bates, colored, a barber, formerly of Washington, D. C., and now residng at East Liverpool, and Alice Crastry, also formerly of Washington, D. C., but now residing at East Liverpool, have been granted a marriage license.

A license has been issued to Lucano Pussacco, of Salem, a native of Italy, and Ready L. Culler, of Lisbon.

Charles Edwin Smith, of Columbiana, but formerly of Lisbn, and Agnes Elizabeth Mellon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John A. Mellon of Columbiana, have been granted a marriage license. They were married at Columbiana by the Rev. Rupert.

Clinton Boales, a potter, formerly of Salem, but residing at Beloit, and Pearl Hahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hahn, of Winona, have secured a marriage license. They were married in Lisbon by the Rev. Camaron of the United Presbyterian church.

TWO SUITS FILED IN COURT HERE

Claiming that a note they held for $181.50 given by the Savage Clay & Mining Co., of Salineville to the Iron Trade Review Pub. Co., of Cleveland, went to protest Dec. 23, 1924, the latter have filed a petition in common pleas court for judgment. The note was signed by E. C. Diveley, secretary of the company, the petition relates.

Charles S. Anglemyer, as administrator of the estate of William Anglemyer, has filed suit in common pleas court against Cosino Chiera, of near Leetonia, seeking the collection of $2,000, the balance claimed due on a note. The paper was secured by a mortgage on a farm of 48.90 acres in section 13 Salem township, dated Feb. 1, 1923.

Ravenna Jurist Dead.

Judge L. T. Farr of Lisbon, has been advised of the death at Ravenna of Common Pleas Judge A. F. Cole, who was known to many members of the Columbiana County Bar Association. Judge Cole had been on the bench but a few years. The funeral services will be held at his late home in Ravenna Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Aged Woman Claims to Have Served Thru Civil War As Man In Federal Army

Mrs. Peter Johnson, Inmate of County Farm at Plattsburgh, N. Y., Bares Melodramatic Tale.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y. Dec. 10. — The melodramatic tale of an aged Plattsburg woman who served throughout the Civil war in the guise of a male member of Company B, Fifty-third Massachusetts regiment, was bared here today.

Mrs. Peter Johnson, inmate of a county farm, says she did war service under the name of Saul Hill. If her story is proven the woman warrior will ascend from her lowly position to the status of a pensioned lady.

Revelation of the strange and almost unbelievable situation came about today when Mrs. Johnson described her military experiences to emissaries of the American Red Cross.

The aged woman — now nearing the century mark—declared she served in the United States navy after the Civil war came to a close.

Her Sex Unlearned.

"No one with whom I fought ever knew I was a woman," Mrs. Johnson said.

Mrs. Johnson today told the following story to the Red Cross investigators:

"I was born Mary Ann Murphy on February 7, 1840, in Plattsburg. My father was killed in the Old Fort at Plattsburg. Mother died when I was eight years old and I was adopted by Benjamin Hill of that city. I lived with that family until I was 16. At that time we lived in Westminster, Mass. The Hills moved to Keyesville, N. Y., bought an old Indian war house and started a farm, but it was not a success, so they moved to Westminster. They occupied what was known as the old General Mills home.

"Soon after the outbreak of the Civil war Tom Hill said he was going to enlist in the army. He went to Camp Groton, Ayer, Mass., which is now known as Camp Devens. My home life became unbearable and lonely with Tom gone, for I loved him devotedly, as though he were my own brother. I followed him to Camp Groton. I started my journey at midnight and got as far as Walom Marshes, now Whalom Park, where I was picked up by a group of men who were traveling in a barge to Camp Groton. The men rolled me in coats and blankets and got me into camp. I asked to see Colonel Davis or Lieut. Pratt, but this was refused. I was then taken at my request to my brother Tom. After begging to be taken along with Tom and his companions, he agreed to enlist me as a man and keep the secret. A week before the men had enlisted a wife of one of the comrades, went through as a man.

Is Given Uniform.

"I was taken to New York, my hair was clipped and I was given a uniform and enlisted as Saul Hill, 18 years old, of Company B, Fifty-third Massachusetts regiment. I went to Missouri and served during the remainder of the war, about a year and a half. I was given $110 when I was discharged. I remember Captain Corey well."

From this point Mrs. Johnson's memory appears to be hazy. She spoke of Westvale, and Orange, Mass.; South Vernon, Vt., and a college called Mt. Vernon, Bennington, Vt.; Montreal and Quebec, Canada. Peter Johnson, a Dane, followed her around from place to place and she finally married him.

With great emphasis Mrs. Johnson told that after her services in the Civil war she enlisted in the U. S. navy from Key West. She plainly recalled on one occasion when her ship landed in Quebec and she says the royal party of England was to go aboard that night. As they laid the gang plank from the boat to the royal palace coach she succeeded in going ashore against all orders.

Queen Victoria?

She says she found a beautiful lady seated on a bench and beside her was a huge valise. She asked protection of this old lady and asked her advice as to how she would escape from service and told her secret, that she was a woman, and had served five years and nine months as a male sailor.

This woman told Mrs. Johnson that she was Queen Victoria of England, Mrs. Johnson said, and that her son, the Crown Prince, was to be married that night. The Queen insisted that Mrs. Johnson remain with her until the royal procession had passed, according to the aged woman's story. She said that the Queen wrote a note and handed it to a lackey. This proved to be the first stepping stone toward a new home, and within a short time Mrs. Johnson was sent to the convent at St. Rock, Quebec. From then on Mrs. Johnson's mind wanders as to her life. (Note by editor—Queen Victoria never visited America.)

About two years ago while at work in a private home she fell down stairs and was severely injured. She was sent to a hospital and from there to the poor farm. The woman said that her brother, by adoption, Tom Hill, died in 1911. He served as a railroad engineer for many years, she said.

Mrs. Johnson described in great detail the Battle of Antietam and other engagements she was in. She said that a scar and powder marks on one of her fingers was due to a bullet wound in the Civil war. She has lost all correspondence and records of her case, but she believes that at some time or other some historical society had a book written about her.

The Red Cross has certified the service of Tom Hill, but has found no record of Saul Hill, Company B, Fifty-third Massachusetts regiment. Record is found, however, of a Joseph Hill in Company G, Fifty-third Massachusetts regiment.

A request from the Red Cross has been sent to J. Brainard Hall, pension attorney; the adjutant general of Massachusetts, Daughters of Veterans, Convent at St. Rock, P. Q., through the Canadian Red Cross and the Tewksbury, Mass., hospital, and several other organizations for information they may have of the woman.

My home life became unbearable and lonely with Tom gone, for I loved him devotedly, as though he were my own brother. I followed him to Camp Groton. I started my journey at midnight and got as far as Walom Marshes, now Whalom Park, where I was picked up by a group of men who were traveling in a barge to Camp Groton. The men rolled me in coats and blankets and got me into camp. I asked to see Colonel Davis or Lieut. Pratt, but this was refused. I was then taken at my request to my brother Tom. After begging to be taken along with Tom and his companions, he agreed to enlist me as a man and keep the secret. A week before the men had enlisted a wife of one of the comrades, went through as a man.

Is Given Uniform.

"I was taken to New York, my hair was clipped and I was given a uniform and enlisted as Saul Hill, 18 years old, of Company B, Fifty-third Massachusetts regiment. I went to Missouri and served during the remainder of the war, about a year and a half. I was given $110 when I was discharged. I remember Captain Corey well."

From this point Mrs. Johnson's memory appears to be hazy. She spoke of Westvale, and Orange, Mass.; South Vernon, Vt., and a college called Mt. Vernon, Bennington, Vt.; Montreal and Quebec, Canada. Peter Johnson, a Dane, followed her around from place to place and she finally married him.

With great emphasis Mrs. Johnson told that after her services in the Civil war she enlisted in the U. S. navy from Key West. She plainly recalled on one occasion when her ship landed in Quebec and she says the royal party of England was to go aboard that night. As they laid the gang plank from the boat to the royal palace coach she succeeded in going ashore against all orders.

Queen Victoria?

She says she found a beautiful lady seated on a bench and beside her was a huge valise. She asked protection of this old lady and asked her advice as to how she would escape from service and told her secret, that she was a woman, and had served five years and nine months as a male sailor.

This woman told Mrs. Johnson that she was Queen Victoria of England, Mrs. Johnson said, and that her son, the Crown Prince, was to be married that night. The Queen insisted that Mrs. Johnson remain with her until the royal procession had passed, according to the aged woman's story. She said that the Queen wrote a note and handed it to a lackey. This proved to be the first stepping stone toward a new home, and within a short time Mrs. Johnson was sent to the convent at St. Rock, Quebec. From then on Mrs. Johnson's mind wanders as to her life. (Note by editor—Queen Victoria never visited America.)

About two years ago while at work in a private home she fell down stairs and was severely injured. She was sent to a hospital and from there to the poor farm. The woman said that her brother, by adoption, Tom Hill, died in 1911. He served as a railroad engineer for many years, she said.

Mrs. Johnson described in great detail the Battle of Antietam and other engagements she was in. She said that a scar and powder marks on one of her fingers was due to a bullet wound in the Civil war. She has lost all correspondence and records of her case, but she believes that at some time or other some historical society had a book written about her.

The Red Cross has certified the service of Tom Hill, but has found no record of Saul Hill, Company B, Fifty-third Massachusetts regiment. Record is found, however, of a Joseph Hill in Company G, Fifty-third Massachusetts regiment.

A request from the Red Cross has been sent to J. Brainard Hall, pension attorney; the adjutant general of Massachusetts, Daughters of Veterans, Convent at St. Rock, P. Q., through the Canadian Red Cross and the Tewksbury, Mass., hospital, and several other organizations for information they may have of the woman.

Sons of Vets Organize.

GLOUCESTER—The first Sons of Veterans' camp in Athens county has just been installed at Gloucester. Nearly 75 men, whose fathers were veterans in the Civil war, enrolled. Trimble township furnished more soldiers for the Union army than any other township in Ohio of the same population.

Vienna has just opened a radio broadcasting station.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

PLANES MENACE WILD GAME LIFE

Deadly Effect Shown in Reducing Wild Fowl Numbers.

WASHINGTON.—The terrifying effect of airplanes upon wild fowl is so great that if any general use should be made of them in hunting, the result would be exceedingly disastrous, according to the Biological Survey of the department of Agriculture Probably no other single method of pursuit of wild ducks and other game birds could parallel their deadly effect in reducing the number of wild fowl.

It is for this reason that the Biological Survey has called upon all sportsmen and conservationists interested in the maintenance of this country's supply of wild fowl to gather and forward to it in Washington accurate information concerning such violations of law.

"This co-operation will be of the greatest practical value in helping to conserve our wild fowl supply, and, owing to the small number of game wardens, who must cover a vast territory, is much needed," said E. W. Nelson, chief biologist of the department of Agriculture.

Since the Federal law against airplane hunting became effective 19 cases have meen reported, 6 of them having been reported during the past year. There have been 8 convictions in all and 8 cases remain undisposed of. In 2 cases true bills were not returned and one case only was dismissed.

Spirited Election.

NELSONVILLE.—In one of the most spirited elections in recent years, Robert Marshall, president of the Hocking union miners' organization, has won over J. F. Swyers, of Murray City, by at least 300 votes. Conrad Wein, veteran secretary-treasurer, was re-elected.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

PLANES MENACE WILD GAME LIFE

Deadly Effect Shown in Reducing Wild Fowl Numbers.

WASHINGTON.—The terrifying effect of airplanes upon wild fowl is so great that if any general use should be made of them in hunting, the result would be exceedingly disastrous, according to the Biological Survey of the department of Agriculture Probably no other single method of pursuit of wild ducks and other game birds could parallel their deadly effect in reducing the number of wild fowl.

It is for this reason that the Biological Survey has called upon all sportsmen and conservationists interested in the maintenance of this country's supply of wild fowl to gather and forward to it in Washington accurate information concerning such violations of law.

"This co-operation will be of the greatest practical value in helping to conserve our wild fowl supply, and, owing to the small number of game wardens, who must cover a vast territory, is much needed," said E. W. Nelson, chief biologist of the department of Agriculture.

Since the Federal law against airplane hunting became effective 19 cases have meen reported, 6 of them having been reported during the past year. There have been 8 convictions in all and 8 cases remain undisposed of. In 2 cases true bills were not returned and one case only was dismissed.

Spirited Election.

NELSONVILLE.—In one of the most spirited elections in recent years, Robert Marshall, president of the Hocking union miners' organization, has won over J. F. Swyers, of Murray City, by at least 300 votes. Conrad Wein, veteran secretary-treasurer, was re-elected.

THE DOUBLE HOUSE

They rode then in silence. Dascome knew that she was tense, her thoughts busied with Rossiter. He saw that her hands gripped her capo and that her arms were held tightly to her sides. Evidently now she was "faced by something really vital," and, as she had said, she was "restrained."

They had gone many blocks when she asked abruptly, "What do you think of marriage, Mr. Dascome?"

He had expected her to begin in some such way; he knew that she was pondering a problem difficult to solve. "That is a large question," he returned. "Specialize a little."

"I mean—I was thinking—how much should one forgive—a husband, or wife?"

"You mean how much can a wife forgive a husband," he corrected quietly. "Isn't it largely a matter to be decided by the individual? Haven't our laws recognized that it is? What one woman can forgive another may be utterly unable to forgive without doing violence to herself, mentally and morally. Our laws have made that common-sense concession to the individual, to the individualistic idea. No doubt many individuals abuse our divorce laws, but they are a small number in comparison to the multitude who, in times past, have been abused by unindividualistic laws. At least, that is my feeling."

"It is what I have felt," she said, and sank into silence.

Dascome waited. When she aroused again, it might be to tell him to turn about and take her home; tell him that she could not rent her house to him. He wondered how much she would explain.

Karesia broke the silence finally. "Are you quite certain that you want my house, Mr. Dascome? You haven't changed your mind? You are satisfied?"

"I am very certain that I want it. I am not merely satisfied, I am grateful."

Her voice was quite resolute. "We will sign the lease [illegible]n."

Dascom[illegible] drew an inaudible breath. He did not look at h[illegible] a few moments. When he did, he saw that she had relaxed; her entire expression had changed. "It was a white night last night, wasn't it? Tonight there is a foggy moon." Her voice had the sweet lilt which was one of her charms.

"There has been a high fog all evening, now it is coming in low—from the ocean. Will you be chilly? I have a robe in the locker—shall I put it around you?"

"No, I am quite warm."

"But have you noticed?" he said, pointing.

They were beyond Marmount. The hills on their right loomed into a misty, half-lighted sky; below them the broad valley reached into a billowy, pallid cloud which was rolling along rapidly, and, on its valley-wide route, lights that had twinkled insistently vanished. Objects in the half-moonlit space below lost substance quickly; they looked down now on what seemed a gulf filled with vapor. A few moments, and the fleecy chill touched them, envelope[illegible] them, and the lights of their car shone on wisp[illegible], floating moisture. The road grew indistinct and [illegible]he lights of the occasional cars that passed them seemed to be groping for expression through an impalpable veil.

"Are you nervous?" Dascome asked.

Her voice was confident. "Not with you as chauffeur."

"We have only a little farther to go. We needn't go clear to Beverly."

They glided down a slope, turned a bend, then climbed toward a pinkish glow. Dascome brought car to a stop just this side of the glow, on a bit of level beside the road which, in that wooleny fog, Karesia would never have discovered, but which either his keener eye or his instinct discovered for him. She guessed where they were—a settlement on the long incline this side of Beverly Hills, several small stores no either side of the road and back of them scattered houses. Karesia could see neither the stores nor the houses, only the glow which their lighted windows cast on the fog. The headlights of cars drawn up before the stores added to the pinkish glow, though the cars were wrapped in the universal shroud. Probably their drivers had taken counsel of caution and were waiting for the fog to lift.

"Will you wait here while I reconoitre?" Dascome asked. "I think the drug store may be crowded with people from these waiting cars. I shall be back soon," and he disappeared in the fog.

Karesia had been thinking steadily and she continued to think. The past had struck her full in the face; it had been like the return of the dead. There was a hot hand pressing on her heart; after all those years to walk into her house and assert his claim! Purposely do it in the presence of another man! An exhibition of anger and jealousy, a sort of mocking reminiscence tinged with tenderness. In her lonely hours, she had dreamed of some such return, had half wanted it; in her angry and restless moments, she had decided to throw that past to the winds. In moments when courage was low, she had reminded herself that she was hand-tied; better to go on with life as it was—until loved entered it again. There had always been that resolution beneath all her uncertainty; she would take love when it came to her, fight for it, free herself—if she could.

Was Rossiter going to try to revive the past? Could it be revived? Wasn't it simply a fascination that had had its day and had passed? The sense of comfort, of confidence, of reliance upon strength that had swept through her when she had laid her cheek against Dascome's hand! . . . Karesia sat upright and gathered her cape about her; she had made her decision when she had said, "We will sign the lease, then." The words had meant to her, "I shall go straight on—the future shall decide."

Dascome found her sitting very erect. "There are people in the drug store, consoling themselves with soft drinks, but there is a little grocery this side where there is no one but the proprietor and his wife. We can go there."

He helped her out of the car and when his hand touched her cape he said with concern, "This fog is like rain—a little more and you will be well through. I shouldn't have let you come."

It was a joy to Karesia, his air of concern; the careful way in which he guided her through the fog. "I don't take cold easily," she assured him.

Yank Athletes Outrank All Foes In 1924 Sports

Runyon Says

New York City is the "Big Time." Its Judgment Means Fame, Money. Can You Explain Why That Is? The Over-Night Rise of Flowers. Boxing and Theatrical Business.

By DAMON RUNYON

HERE is a funny thing:

In the boxing game and the theatrical business, New York is the "big time," goal of the performer's ambition. You know that.

To the actor, the Broadway theatre is success. To the boxer, Madison Square Garden, or the outdoor arenas before New York observers and critics, is fame and fortune.

New York's judgment is accepted as about the last word.

It is the judgment that seems to sway the rest of the country, the judgment that means the money! You know that.

Yet, if you polled the theatrical and boxing critics and the observers who represent this judgment, you would find that 90 per cent of them came from outside New York.

Isn't that a funny thing?

In other words, if these theatrical and boxing critics and observers were back in their home towns, their judgment wouldn't mean a great deal.

That judgment rendered in New York is important.

This is among the many matters that puzzle the writer.

The New York judgment is strangely naive.

A boxer or an actor, may come into New York with a big reputation thruout the country.

You, in San Francisco, or Atlanta, Denver, or Pubelo, may know he is good, may have been appreciating his talent for years.

But the New York judgment holds him unknown, obscure, until it has passed on him. Then when it finds just as you have known him, it hails him naively as a brand new "discovery."

If a fighter, or an actor, goes to Akron, Ohio, let us say, as a New York success, Akron is supposed to accept him as a good performer, taking New York's word for it.

But if the performer comes to New York from Akron, though he have Akron's strongest endorsement, the New York judgment says, "Show us."

And this is true, though a poll of the critics and observers representing the judgement might show the majority of them from Akron, too.

What do you make of it.

A theatrical case in point is that.. of Moran and Mack, black-face comedians, who are just now the hit of a big Broadway show.

The morning after they appeared in this show the metropolitan critics wrote of them as if they were wholly new, a theatrical "find."

Yet, Moran and Mack had been working in vaudeville for years, making thousands laugh, and been in other Broadway shows doing about the same thing they are doing now—probably doing it no better.

You may have seen them, may still be marveling that they are suddenly proclaimed excellent by New York critics and observers, when you knew it all the time.

But, none the less, this recent acclaim is accounted real fame for Moran and Mack. It eventually means a salary increase proportionately to that fame.

Do you believe with Longfellow, "Fame comes only when deserved, and then it is as inevitable as destiny, for it is destiny?"

A boxing case in point is the case of "Tiger" Flowers, a Georgia Negro, who appeared in Madison Square Garden before a packed house recently and scored a technical knockout over Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion of the world.

The next day Flowers was the talk of the town, a real sensation, with critics and observers.

"Why, here's a real discovery," excited "ringworms" raved. "Here's a NEW great fighter."

Yet, Flowers was well known throughout the country. He had even appeared in one of the smaller clubs in New York several times, had had more than passing mention from some of the boxing writers.

Boxing fans in other towns who had seen Flowers no doubt wondered at New York's amazement over his prowess, at the statement that he was a discovery.

But you can't discount the value of a "big time" appearance, and "big time" success, which is a New York appearance and a New York success.

You may smile at the enthusiasm with which the New York critics and observers greet their "discoveries," which are told to you. But the performers know its importance.

Flowers was in demand all over the country the day after his appearance in Madison Square Garden. Up to that time he had difficulty getting engagements, despite his ability.

In both the boxing game and the theatrical business it often is difficult for performers of ability to get on the "big time," to win the public attention and money their ability merits.

Boxing promoters and theatrical producers will tell you they are always eager to find new talent. But it often is difficult to convince them of the ability of the new talent to the extent of giving that talent an opportunity of displaying itself.

It isn't that the promoters and producers are poor judges of talent. They simply don't like to take chances. When they are putting on a show they are risking their money. Naturally they want to minimize the element of chance as far as possible. So they get performers known to their public.

While Flowers was the big sensation of the night of his appearance at Madison Square Garden, he wasn't in the main event.

When the promoters of the show arranged their programme with the idea of drawing money, they put two KNOWN performers "on top"—in the leading roles. Those performers were Kid Norfolk and Tom Gibbons.

Before the show, Flowers in a main event with any man you can name wouldn't have drawn enough people to half fill the house. Gibbons and Norfolk, the stars, packed it.

The next night, Flowers, with almost any opponent, would have done the same thing. He was "made," as an unknown actor in a minor role in a show featuring stars is often "made" in one performance.

Flowers had the luck of getting on the "big time" to what they call "the right spot."

That "right spot," the "spot" exactly suited to one's capabilities, is as important as the opportunity itself.

Many a real good actor or boxer has failed to impress in their first appearance on the "big time" because the "spot" was not exactly right. There's often both luck and accident in getting in "the right spot," not only in the theatrical business and the boxing game but in everything else.

Given the opportunity of "the right spot," remember what Shakespeare says:

Who seeks, and will not take, when once 'tis offered
Shall never find it more.

George Walker, discoverer of the main reef of the famous Rand gold mines of South Africa, died recently in straightened circumstances.

COAST GRIDDERS ARE VICTORS

Southern Californians Defeat Missouri Team, 20-7.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—In the second international gridiron conflict on the Pacific coast this year, the University of Southern California defeated the University of Missouri, champions of the Missouri valley conference, 20 to 7, here yesterday afternoon.

Outplayed by the visitors in the first half the Californians clinched victory in the third quarter. Forward passes gave the Trojans tow of the three touchdowns they scored in that period. The Missouri touchdown came in the last 30 seconds of play when Tuttle recovered a fumble 20 yards of the Trojan goal and dashed across the last white line.

There was no scoring until the third quarter. Then the Trojans ran wild. Line plunging put across one touchdown. Then the passing game was called on and two more touchdowns were recorded.

Brown's Sport Review For 1924

Moguls Cause Baseball's Supremacy to be Challenged

By Norman E. Brown.

The year 1924 goes down in history as one of the greatest—at least from America's standpoint—in the annals of sport.

Triumphs of Uncle Sam's sons and daughters in the major sports, the Olympic games and in the so-called minor branches added prestige to his laurels in great and generous gobs

Baseball, as usual, takes front rank in the amout of interest invoked and the thrills furnished. But there is a warning to the blind baseball moguls and all concerned in the progress of the diamond sport in the way both golf and tennis increased their holds on the rank and file of sport lovers.

Herewith are the outstanding features of the baseball season, ranked according to their importance.

Washington's Triumph First.

The winning of the American League and world's championship by the Washington club.

The triumph of Walter Johnson, grand old man of baseball, in the closing innings of the final game of the world series.

The many revelation of Heinie sand, Philadelphia National league infielder, that Jimmy O'Connell of the Giants had offered him a bribe to throw the game needed by the Giants to win the National league pennant.

The disgraceful school-boy squabbling of Commissioner Landis and President Ban Johnson of the American league.

The superior leadership of Stanley Harris, Washington manager, in his first effort as manager of a big league club.

The strikeout record of Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn pitcher, and his all-around work which won him the title of most valuable player to his team in the National League.

The dethronement of the New York Yankees as champions of the American league after a three-year reign.

The deaths of many of the game's celebrities—Pat Moran, Frank Chance, John Bruce, Jake Daubert, Tony Boeckel.

The record-breaking achievement of Rogers Hornsby in leading the National league for the fifth consecutive year and continuing at a batting pace that places his record for that span above Hans Wagner's great record.

Babe Ruth's feat in keeping his throne as home run king and leading the American league in batting.

The purchase of Lefty Groves, star pitcher for the International league, for the reported price of $100,600 to the Athletics.

The appointment of Eddie Collins as manager of the White Sox. Repeated rumors of Collins' departure from the Sox, and spurned opportunities of the club to name him pilot on previous occasions "killed" much of the interest in this appointment.

The departure of Del Pratt, Jeff Pfeffer, Larry Gardner and one or two other popular veterans from the ranks of the big timers.

The European tour of the Giants and White Sox all-star team. This was the first of such collections to win the distinction of playing a nine-inning game for the benefit of 20 Irishmen in Dublin.

The unanimous action of the baseball writers in choosing the Washington club to finish anywhere from eighth to sixth place.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 26.—Coach Knute Rockne and his warriors of Notre Dame, left here last night en route to Arizona, where he hopes to find weather clear enough to permit the squad to engage in hard practice.

Another day of practice was held by the squad yesterday here in preparation for their game on New Year's Day with Leland Stanford. Welsh, all-American center, was in harness yesterday, although not in the best of condition.

BERLENBACH HAS DIFFICULT JOB

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—Paul Berlenbach, New York light heavyweight, faces one of the most difficult assignments of his ring career when he meets Larry Estridge, Negro southpaw tonight in Madison Square Garden.

Estridge holds the Negro middleweight title, having won it from Panama Joe Gans in the milk fund bouts at the Yankee stadium in June.

Both are sluggers and both carry their most powerful punch in their left hand. Estridge is a keen boxer who can take and give while Berlenbach is a two-fister puncher and carries a harder blow.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 26.—Ed Thorpe, Columbia, will referee the Notre Dame-Stanford football game at Pasadena New Year's day. C. C. Quiggly, Kansts, will umpire; Walter Eckersall, Chicago, will be head linesman; and Judge R. Morris, Washington, will be field judge.

Epinard is Beaten Four Times on American Tracks; Babe Ruth Outhits American Leaguers; Vance Voted Most Valuable in National Loop; Few Championship Fights During Year.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—The great god Sport glanced back over the months of 1924 and smiled a satisfiedsmile.

In retrospect, he saw the American polo team defeat England, he saw the American Olympic team score a notable victory over the nations of the world, he saw Bobby Jones win the ameteur golf championship and the American team the Walker Cup in spite of the efforts of England's best; he saw Epinard, the French thoroughbred, beaten four times out of a possible four on American tracks.

But the old boy's vision is by no means limited. He saw many and varied things, among which was Washington's victory in the world series, the verdict of America's representatives in the Davis Cup series, the wholly deserving position of Notre Dame in football.

What he saw otherwise is appended in detail.

FEW CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHTS

The manly art of relined mayhem staked itself to a period of depression such as it had not known in modern years. Only two championships changed hands, title bouts being all too few. Even meetings between good second-raters were excepional.

It was the inevitable ebb after a flood tide of financial prosperity, dating back to the years immediately following the war.

Abe Goldstein and Cannonball Eddie Martin fell heir to the purple during the year. Abe defeated an aging Joe Lynch early in the campaign and fought several second-raters in defense of his title later on. Abe was the exception among champions, however. Martin lifted the crown from Goldstein only recently.

Jack Dempsey didn't draw on a glove in defense of his title, for reasons several and abiding. Benny Leonard danced off with Pal Moran in a no-decision bout and then called it a campaign. Johnny Dundee resigned from his featherweight title and previously lost that so-called 130-pound championship to Kid Sullivan.

Mickey Walker knocked out Bobby Barrett in a welterweight championship bout that attracted slight attention outside of Philadelphia. Mike McTigue, alleged light-heavyweight champion, was too proud to fight—or something. Harry Greb, middleweight king, fought a number of no-decision affairs, and Pancho Villa threatened several times to find his flyweight title, but didn't.

Georges Carpentier, our French boy friend, added to the gayety of the occasion by returning to this country for some of the American dollars he overlooked in his last visit. He lost the decision to Tom Gibbons in ten rounds, at Michigan City, and later was knocked out by Gene Tunney in the fourteenth. Georges then smiled knowingly and went no about his business.

Gibbons also stopped Jack Bloomfield in a few rounds in London, but the real knockout came when the promoter paid Thomas only part of his guarantee. A six-round knockout of Kid Norfolk wound up Gibbon's 1924 campaign.

Luis Firpo, the well-known human being, also stepped out a couple of times, to his ultimate regret. He finished second in every one of twelve rounds with Harry Wills and was cut into slithers by Charley Weinert's left hand on a later occasion.

Boxing and Firpo will remember 1924 as a particularly disadvantageous year.

Runyon Says

New York City is the "Big Time." Its Judgment Means Fame, Money. Can You Explain Why That Is? The Over-Night Rise of Flowers. Boxing and Theatrical Business.

By DAMON RUNYON

HERE is a funny thing:

In the boxing game and the theatrical business, New York is the "big time," goal of the performer's ambition. You know that.

To the actor, the Broadway theatre is success. To the boxer, Madison Square Garden, or the outdoor arenas before New York observers and critics, is fame and fortune.

New York's judgment is accepted as about the last word.

It is the judgment that seems to sway the rest of the country, the judgment that means the money! You know that.

Yet, if you polled the theatrical and boxing critics and the observers who represent this judgment, you would find that 90 per cent of them came from outside New York.

Isn't that a funny thing?

In other words, if these theatrical and boxing critics and observers were back in their home towns, their judgment wouldn't mean a great deal.

That judgment rendered in New York is important.

This is among the many matters that puzzle the writer.

The New York judgment is strangely naive.

A boxer or an actor, may come into New York with a big reputation thruout the country.

You, in San Francisco, or Atlanta, or Denver, or Pubelo, may know he is good, may have been appreciating his talent for years.

But the New York judgment holds him unknown, obscure, until it has passed on him. Then when it finds just as you have known him, it hails him naively as a brand new "discovery."

If a fighter, or an actor, goes to Akron, Ohio, let us say, as a New York success, Akron is supposed to accept him as a good performer, taking New York's word for it.

But if the performer comes to New York from Akron, though he have Akron's strongest endorsement, the New York judgment says, "Show us."

And this is true, though a poll of the critics and observers representing the judgement might show the majority of them from Akron, too.

What do you make of it.

A theatrical case in point is that.. of Moran and Mack, black-face comedians, who are just now the hit of a big Broadway show.

The morning after they appeared in this show the metropolitan critics wrote of them as if they were wholly new, a theatrical "find."

Yet, Moran and Mack had been working in vaudeville for years, making thousands laugh, and been in other Broadway shows doing about the same thing they are doing now—probably doing it no better.

You may have seen them, may still be marveling that they are suddenly proclaimed excellent by New York critics and observers, when you knew it all the time.

But, none the less, this recent acclaim is accounted real fame for Moran and Mack. It eventually means a salary increase proportionately to that fame.

Do you believe with Longfellow, "Fame comes only when deserved, and then it is as inevitable as destiny, for it is destiny?"

A boxing case in point is the case of "Tiger" Flowers, a Georgia Negro, who appeared in Madison Square Garden before a packed house recently and scored a technical knockout over Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion of the world.

The next day Flowers was the talk of the town, a real sensation, with critics and observers.

"Why, here's a real discovery," excited "ringworms" raved. "Here's a NEW great fighter."

Yet, Flowers was well known throughout the country. He had even appeared in one of the smaller clubs in New York several times, had had more than passing mention from some of the boxing writers.

Boxing fans in other towns who had seen Flowers no doubt wondered at New York's amazement over his prowess, at the statement that he was a discovery.

But you can't discount the value of a "big time" appearance, and "big time" success, which is a New York appearance and a New York success.

You may smile at the enthusiasm with which the New York critics and observers greet their "discoveries," which are told to you. But the performers know its importance.

Flowers was in demand all over the country the day after his appearance in Madison Square Garden. Up to that time he had difficulty getting engagements, despite his ability.

In both the boxing game and the theatrical business it often is difficult for performers of ability to get on the "big time," to win the public attention and money their ability merits.

Boxing promoters and theatrical producers will tell you they are always eager to find new talent. But it often is difficult to convince them of the ability of the new talent to the extent of giving that talent an opportunity of displaying itself.

It isn't that the promoters and producers are poor judges of talent. They simply don't like to take chances. When they are putting on a show they are risking their money. Naturally they want to minimize the element of chance as far as possible. So they get performers known to their public.

While Flowers was the big sensation of the night of his appearance at Madison Square Garden, he wasn't in the main event.

When the promoters of the show arranged their programme with the idea of drawing money, they put two KNOWN performers "on top"—in the leading roles. Those performers were Kid Norfolk and Tom Gibbons.

Before the show, Flowers in a main event with any man you can name wouldn't have drawn enough people to half fill the house. Gibbons and Norfolk, the stars, packed it.

The next night, Flowers, with almost any opponent, would have done the same thing. He was "made," as an unknown actor in a minor role in a show featuring stars is often "made" in one performance.

Flowers had the luck of getting on the "big time" to what they call "the right spot."

That "right spot," the "spot" exactly suited to one's capabilities, is as important as the opportunity itself.

Many a real good actor or boxer has failed to impress in their first appearance on the "big time" because the "spot" was not exactly right. There's often both luck and accident in getting in "the right spot," not only in the theatrical business and the boxing game but in everything else.

Given the opportunity of "the right spot," remember what Shakespeare says:

Who seeks, and will not take, when once 'tis offered
Shall never find it more.

George Walker, discoverer of the main reef of the famous Rand gold mines of South Africa, died recently in straightened circumstances.

COAST GRIDDERS ARE VICTORS

Southern Californians Defeat Missouri Team, 20-7.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—In the second international gridiron conflict on the Pacific coast this year, the University of Southern California defeated the University of Missouri, champions of the Missouri valley conference, 20 to 7, here yesterday afternoon.

Outplayed by the visitors in the first half the Californians clinched victory in the third quarter. Forward passes gave the Trojans tow of the three touchdowns they scored in that period. The Missouri touchdown came in the last 30 seconds of play when Tuttle recovered a fumble 20 yards of the Trojan goal and dashed across the last white line.

There was no scoring until the third quarter. Then the Trojans ran wild. Line plunging put across one touchdown. Then the passing game was called on and two more touchdowns were recorded.

Baseball, as usual, takes front rank in the amout of interest invoked and the thrills furnished. But there is a warning to the blind baseball moguls and all concerned in the progress of the diamond sport in the way both golf and tennis increased their holds on the rank and file of sport lovers.

Herewith are the outstanding features of the baseball season, ranked according to their importance.

Washington's Triumph First.

The winning of the American League and world's championship by the Washington club.

The triumph of Walter Johnson, grand old man of baseball, in the closing innings of the final game of the world series.

The many revelation of Heinie sand, Philadelphia National league infielder, that Jimmy O'Connell of the Giants had offered him a bribe to throw the game needed by the Giants to win the National league pennant.

The disgraceful school-boy squabbling of Commissioner Landis and President Ban Johnson of the American league.

The superior leadership of Stanley Harris, Washington manager, in his first effort as manager of a big league club.

The strikeout record of Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn pitcher, and his all-around work which won him the title of most valuable player to his team in the National League.

The dethronement of the New York Yankees as champions of the American league after a three-year reign.

The deaths of many of the game's celebrities—Pat Moran, Frank Chance, John Bruce, Jake Daubert, Tony Boeckel.

The record-breaking achievement of Rogers Hornsby in leading the National league for the fifth consecutive year and continuing at a batting pace that places his record for that span above Hans Wagner's great record.

Babe Ruth's feat in keeping his throne as home run king and leading the American league in batting.

The wining of his fifth consecutive pennant by Jakie Atz, leader of the Ft. Worth team in the Texas league.

Jack Dunn's continued monopoly of pennants in the International league. He annexed his sixth straight.

The purchase of Lefty Groves, star pitcher for the International league, for the reported price of $100,600 to the Athletics.

The appointment of Eddie Collins as manager of the White Sox. Repeated rumors of Collins' departure from the Sox, and spurned opportunities of the club to name him pilot on previous occasions "killed" much of the interest in this appointment.

The departure of Del Pratt, Jeff Pfeffer, Larry Gardner and one or two other popular veterans from the ranks of the big timers.

The European tour of the Giants and White Sox all-star team. This was the first of such collections to win the distinction of playing a nine-inning game for the benefit of 20 Irishmen in Dublin.

The unanimous action of the baseball writers in choosing the Washington club to finish anywhere from eighth to sixth place.

The repeated offer of Owner Ebbetts of the Dodgers of $275,000 for Rogers Hornsby and his assertion that he meant it.

Cozy Dolan's sudden loss of memory.

The number of former big league ball players who drew attention in the "amateur" ranks of many cities.

NO LET-DOWN FOR ROCKNE'S ELEVEN

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 26.—Coach Knute Rockne and his warriors of Notre Dame, left here last night en route to Arizona, where he hopes to find weather clear enough to permit the squad to engage in hard practice.

Another day of practice was held by the squad yesterday here in preparation for their game on New Year's Day with Leland Stanford. Welsh, all-American center, was in harness yesterday, although not in the best of condition.

BERLENBACH HAS DIFFICULT JOB

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—Paul Berlenbach, New York light heavyweight, faces one of the most difficult assignments of his ring career when he meets Larry Estridge, Negro southpaw tonight in Madison Square Garden.

Estridge holds the Negro middleweight title, having won it from Panama Joe Gans in the milk fund bouts at the Yankee stadium in June.

Both are sluggers and both carry their most powerful punch in their left hand. Estridge is a keen boxer who can take and give while Berlenbach is a two-fister puncher and carries a harder blow.

Name Grid Officials.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 26.—Ed Thorpe, Columbia, will referee the Notre Dame-Stanford football game at Pasadena New Year's day. C. C. Quiggly, Kansts, will umpire; Walter Eckersall, Chicago, will be head linesman; and Judge R. Morris, Washington, will be field judge.

Win Olympic Meet, Polo, Golf Matches; Nats Top Baseball

Epinard is Beaten Four Times on American Tracks; Babe Ruth Outhits American Leaguers; Vance Voted Most Valuable in National Loop; Few Championship Fights During Year.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—The great god Sport glanced back over the months of 1924 and smiled a satisfiedsmile.

In retrospect, he saw the American polo team defeat England, he saw the American Olympic team score a notable victory over the nations of the world, he saw Bobby Jones win the ameteur golf championship and the American team the Walker Cup in spite of the efforts of England's best; he saw Epinard, the French thoroughbred, beaten four times out of a possible four on American tracks.

But the old boy's vision is by no means limited. He saw many and varied things, among which was Washington's victory in the world series, the verdict of America's representatives in the Davis Cup series, the wholly deserving position of Notre Dame in football.

What he saw otherwise is appended in detail.

FEW CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHTS

The manly art of relined mayhem staked itself to a period of depression such as it had not known in modern years. Only two championships changed hands, title bouts being all too few. Even meetings between good second-raters were excepional.

It was the inevitable ebb after a flood tide of financial prosperity, dating back to the years immediately following the war.

Abe Goldstein and Cannonball Eddie Martin fell heir to the purple during the year. Abe defeated an aging Joe Lynch early in the campaign and fought several second-raters in defense of his title later on. Abe was the exception among champions, however. Martin lifted the crown from Goldstein only recently.

Jack Dempsey didn't draw on a glove in defense of his title, for reasons several and abiding. Benny Leonard danced off with Pal Moran in a no-decision bout and then called it a campaign. Johnny Dundee resigned from his featherweight title and previously lost that so-called 130-pound championship to Kid Sullivan.

Mickey Walker knocked out Bobby Barrett in a welterweight championship bout that attracted slight attention outside of Philadelphia. Mike McTigue, alleged light-heavyweight champion, was too proud to fight—or something. Harry Greb, middleweight king, fought a number of no-decision affairs, and Pancho Villa threatened several times to find his flyweight title, but didn't.

Georges Carpentier, our French boy friend, added to the gayety of the occasion by returning to this country for some of the American dollars he overlooked in his last visit. He lost the decision to Tom Gibbons in ten rounds, at Michigan City, and later was knocked out by Gene Tunney in the fourteenth. Georges then smiled knowingly and went no about his business.

Gibbons also stopped Jack Bloomfield in a few rounds in London, but the real knockout came when the promoter paid Thomas only part of his guarantee. A six-round knockout of Kid Norfolk wound up Gibbon's 1924 campaign.

Luis Firpo, the well-known human being, also stepped out a couple of times, to his ultimate regret. He finished second in every one of twelve rounds with Harry Wills and was cut into slithers by Charley Weinert's left hand on a later occasion.

Boxing and Firpo will remember 1924 as a particularly disadvantageous year.

HIGH FIVE RESTS UNTIL WEDNESDAY

The holiday season will find Coach O. V. Boone's high school gridders in idleness until Wednesday night, December 31 when they play the Alumni.

The scholastic cagers suspend operations following their game with Franklin & Marshall academy five last Saturday.

The squad, however, expects to be in first class condition for their fray with the graduates.

you get a thrill of pride
that's hard to beat!

BOY MANAGER WINS FLAG

A world's championship flag proudly flies in the shadow of the Capitol's dome, from the peak of a staff that was starkly unadorned at this time last year.

Handled with consummate skill by a twenty-seven-year old manager, the Washington Senators won the American League pennant in a driving finish with the New York Yankees and then captured the world title from the New York Giants in the greatest series ever played.

That night, in the midst of the wildest scenes ever enacted in the Nation's capital, with the possible exception of the occasion that marked the signing of the armistice, two names were on every man's lips as he revealed through Pennsylvania avenue. They were Stanley "Bucky" Harris, the juvenile manager who had jockeyed Washington into its first pennant and world title, and Walter Johnson.

Johnson it was who staked himself to a great season at the age of thirty-seven and topped it off by holding the Giants at bay in the final game, after Mogridge had been relieved of the pitching assignment in the ninth. Johnson's pitching won the penant and it was a source of universal satisfaction that to the same man fell the honor of beating the Giants in the seventh and final game after he had been beaten by the McGraw entry in two previous starts.

That Washington was aided by a freak of fate in this final contest, mattered little or not at all. However, the circumstances are these: In the ninth inning, with two runs needed to tie and second and third occupied, a grounder by Harris took a bad bound over Lindstrom's head and sent the game into extra innings. In the twelfth, with the winning run on second base, a shot by McNeely again took a freak hop over Lindstrom's head and the game and series were over. The winning run might not even have been on the bases had not Gowdy's feet become tangled in his mask as he settled under Ruel's foul. He dropped the ball and Ruel doubled a moment later.

On the eve of the series the baseball world was rocked by Judge Landis' announcement that he had barred Jimmy O'Connell, substitute outfielder, and cozy Dolan, coach, from playing with theNew York Giants and organized baseball for an atempt to bribe Heinie Sand, shortstop of the Phillies.

A jury of baseball writers voted Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn, the most valuable player in the National League—from the standpoint of value to his team—to the great distress of folks in St. Louis, where Rogers Hornsby holds forth. Hornsby established a league record by leading his organization in hitting for the fifth successive season He had a remarkable average of .423.

George H. Ruth, the well-known outfielder, topped the American League hitters and also smote the most home runs, with a few to spare. Vance and Walter Johnson were the respective pitching leaders of their leagues.

The following won penants among the little majors.

American Association, St. Paul, Pacific Coast League, Seattle, International League, Baltimore, Southern Association, Memphis, Eastern League, Waterbury.

Baltimore again took several on the chin in the "little world series." The Orioles lost to Waterbury, then took on St. Paul and lost again The Saints subsequently hooked up with Seattle, but the series was washed out of existence after one game was played.

How to Solve It

Every number indicates the beginning of a word—if horizontal, crosswise, until the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, downwards until the first shaded stop below. Compare the synonyms in the appended lists to the spaces in the diagrams and fill in the words you know. These will give you clues to the more difficult words. When completed the words should interlock perfectly.

Wolgast Is Knocked Out By Tremaine

Wagner-De Marco Draw —Tendler Beats Tiplitz.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—Carl Tremains, Cleveland bantam, stopped Bobby Wolgast in the sixth round of their bout yesterday afternoon. Wolgast was down four times, once in the fifth round and three times in the sixth.

TORONTO GIRLS GO OUT TO WIN— NOT FOR LOOKS

TORONTO, O., Dec. 26.—"We wanta play basketball, not football," was the wail of the Irondale girls' team that played the Toronto quintet at Columbia hall the other night. The game, so the scorekeeper figured up after it was all over, went to Toronto by a 39-14 count.

The visiting girls complained that the locals were too rough for them, while Coach Miss Legon's outfit winked at one another, it is said, and predicted what would happen to Steubenville on January 9.

The Irondale girls failed to comprehend just what they were up against when the two met on the floor.

The visiting lassies, heavily bloomered and bloused, done up in nice style to have their pictures taken, formed a queer contrast to the Toronto misses who wore tight-fitting bloomers and sleeveless jerseys in place of blouses, Irondale wore black, Toronto red.

"We should worry about the looks," one of the Toronto girls said. "What we're after is comfort. We aren't going to be held down by 10 extra pounds of clothes when we don't have to wear 'em.

The Toronto girls are out for the scholastic championship of the Ohio Valley.

Tendler Beats Tiplitz.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—Lew Tendler was awarded the judges' decision over Joe Tiplitz yesterday at the end of their 10-round Christmas scrap. The fight was hard and fast. Tendler, displaying much of his old-time boxing skill and ring generalship, manager to evade most of Tiplitz's savage punches.

Prince of Wales Learning to Play The "Banjulele"

LONDON.—The Prince of Wales already proficient in several of the present-day popular musical instruments, is learning to play the banjulele, the latest craze in Hawaiian instruments.

Brook-Johns, the American tenor-banjoist, introduced the instrument to him when he appeared before the Prince recently, and the Prince was so impressed with the instrument's rythm that he immediately bought two.

It is well known that the Prince has almost a complete set of the latest type of dance-band drums, in the use of which he is very proficient and takes a keen interest.

Habitues of St. James' Palace and York House often witness impromptu dance orchestra entertainments got together by the Prince and members of his staff.

Magazine is Issued By Insane Asylum Inmates in England

LONDON.—A magazine written and edited by lunatics, has been started in England. Some cynics may say that there is nothing new in this, judging from some of the exhibits on the newsstands, but these lunatics are actually in an asylum and are not merely literary bugs. They are inmates of the City Mental hospital at Humberstone, Leicester.

The patients' magazine, which contains both prose nad poetry, is never edited or censored by saner outsiders. A recent number of the magazine contained some verses on the buttercup and a sociological study captioned "Should Married Women Work?"

Who is slave to his stomach serves a hard master.

BOY MANAGER WINS FLAG

A world's championship flag proudly flies in the shadow of the Capitol's dome, from the peak of a staff that was starkly unadorned at this time last year.

Handled with consummate skill by a twenty-seven-year old manager, the Washington Senators won the American League pennant in a driving finish with the New York Yankees and then captured the world title from the New York Giants in the greatest series ever played.

That night, in the midst of the wildest scenes ever enacted in the Nation's capital, with the possible exception of the occasion that marked the signing of the armistice, two names were on every man's lips as he revelled through Pennsylvania avenue. They were Stanley "Bucky" Harris, the juvenile manager who had jockeyed Washington into its first pennant and world title, and Walter Johnson.

Johnson it was who staked himself to a great season at the age of thirty-seven and topped it off by holding the Giants at bay in the final game, after Mogridge had been relieved of the pitching assignment in the ninth. Johnson's pitching won the penant and it was a source of universal satisfaction that to the same man fell the honor of beating the Giants in the seventh and final game after he had been beaten by the McGraw entry in two previous starts.

That Washington was aided by a freak of fate in this final contest, mattered little or not at all. However, the circumstances are these: In the ninth inning, with two runs needed to tie and second and third occupied, a grounder by Harris took a bad bound over Lindstrom's head and sent the game into extra innings. In the twelfth, with the winning run on second base, a shot by McNeely again took a freak hop over Lindstrom's head and the game and series were over. The winning run might not even have been on the bases had not Gowdy's feet become tangled in his mask as he settled under Ruel's foul. He dropped the ball and Ruel doubled a moment later.

On the eve of the series the baseball world was rocked by Judge Landis' announcement that he had barred Jimmy O'Connell, substitute outfielder, and cozy Dolan, coach, from playing with theNew York Giants and organized baseball for an atempt to bribe Heinie Sand, shortstop of the Phillies.

A jury of baseball writers voted Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn, the most valuable player in the National League—from the standpoint of value to his team—to the great distress of folks in St. Louis, where Rogers Hornsby holds forth. Hornsby established a league record by leading his organization in hitting for the fifth successive season He had a remarkable average of .423.

George H. Ruth, the well-known outfielder, topped the American League hitters and also smote the most home runs, with a few to spare. Vance and Walter Johnson were the respective pitching leaders of their leagues.

The following won penants among the little majors.

American Association, St. Paul, Pacific Coast League, Seattle, International League, Baltimore, Southern Association, Memphis, Eastern League, Waterbury.

Baltimore again took several on the chin in the "little world series." The Orioles lost to Waterbury, then took on St. Paul and lost again The Saints subsequently hooked up with Seattle, but the series was washed out of existence after one game was played.

TORONTO GIRLS GO OUT TO WIN— NOT FOR LOOKS

TORONTO, O., Dec. 26.—"We wanta play basketball, not football," was the wail of the Irondale girls' team that played the Toronto quintet at Columbia hall the other night. The game, so the scorekeeper figured up after it was all over, went to Toronto by a 39-14 count.

The visiting girls complained that the locals were too rough for them, while Coach Miss Legon's outfit winked at one another, it is said, and predicted what would happen to Steubenville on January 9.

The Irondale girls failed to comprehend just what they were up against when the two met on the floor.

The visiting lassies, heavily bloomered and bloused, done up in nice style to have their pictures taken, formed a queer contrast to the Toronto misses who wore tight-fitting bloomers and sleeveless jerseys in place of blouses, Irondale wore black, Toronto red.

"We should worry about the looks," one of the Toronto girls said. "What we're after is comfort. We aren't going to be held down by 10 extra pounds of clothes when we don't have to wear 'em.

The Toronto girls are out for the scholastic championship of the Ohio Valley.

How to Solve It

Every number indicates the beginning of a word—if horizontal, crosswise, until the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, downwards until the first shaded stop below. Compare the synonyms in the appended lists to the spaces in the diagrams and fill in the words you know. These will give you clues to the more difficult words. When completed the words should interlock perfectly.

Prince of Wales Learning to Play The "Banjulele"

LONDON.—The Prince of Wales already proficient in several of the present-day popular musical instruments, is learning to play the banjulele, the latest craze in Hawaiian instruments.

Brook-Johns, the American tenor-banjoist, introduced the instrument to him when he appeared before the Prince reecntly, and the Prince was so impressed with the instrument's rythm that he immediately bought two.

It is well known that the Prince has almost a complete set of the latest type of dance-band drums, in the use of which he is very proficient and takes a keen interest.

Habitues of St. James' Palace and York House often witness impromptu dance orchestra entertainments got together by the Prince and members of his staff.

Magazine is Issued By Insane Asylum Inmates in England

LONDON.—A magazine written and edited by lunatics, has been started in England. Some cynics may say that there is nothing new in this, judging from some of the exhibits on the newsstands, but these lunatics are actually in an asylum and are not merely literary bugs. They are inmates of the City Mental hospital at Humberstone, Leicester.

The patients' magazine, which contains both prose and poetry, is never edited or censored by saner outsiders. A recent number of the magazine contained some verses on the buttercup and a sociological study captioned "Should Married Women Work?"

Who is slave to his stomach serves a hard master.

BOY MANAGER WINS FLAG

A world's championship flag proudly flies in the shadow of the Capitol's dome, from the peak of a staff that was starkly unadorned at this time last year.

Handled with consummate skill by a twenty-seven-year old manager, the Washington Senators won the American League pennant in a driving finish with the New York Yankees and then captured the world title from the New York Giants in the greatest series ever played.

That night, in the midst of the wildest scenes ever enacted in the Nation's capital, with the possible exception of the occasion that marked the signing of the armistice, two names were on every man's lips as he revelled through Pennsylvania avenue. They were Stanley "Bucky" Harris, the juvenile manager who had jockeyed Washington into its first pennant and world title, and Walter Johnson.

Johnson it was who staked himself to a great season at the age of thirty-seven and topped it off by holding the Giants at bay in the final game, after Mogridge had been relieved of the pitching assignment in the ninth. Johnson's pitching won the penant and it was a source of universal satisfaction that to the same man fell the honor of beating the Giants in the seventh and final game after he had been beaten by the McGraw entry in two previous starts.

That Washington was aided by a freak of fate in this final contest, mattered little or not at all. However, the circumstances are these: In the ninth inning, with two runs needed to tie and second and third occupied, a grounder by Harris took a bad bound over Lindstrom's head and sent the game into extra innings. In the twelfth, with the winning run on second base, a shot by McNeely again took a freak hop over Lindstrom's head and the game and series were over. The winning run might not even have been on the bases had not Gowdy's feet become tangled in his mask as he settled under Ruel's foul. He dropped the ball and Ruel doubled a moment later.

On the eve of the series the baseball world was rocked by Judge Landis' announcement that he had barred Jimmy O'Connell, substitute outfielder, and cozy Dolan, coach, from playing with theNew York Giants and organized baseball for an atempt to bribe Heinie Sand, shortstop of the Phillies.

A jury of baseball writers voted Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn, the most valuable player in the National League—from the standpoint of value to his team—to the great distress of folks in St. Louis, where Rogers Hornsby holds forth. Hornsby established a league record by leading his organization in hitting for the fifth successive season He had a remarkable average of .423.

George H. Ruth, the well-known outfielder, topped the American League hitters and also smote the most home runs, with a few to spare. Vance and Walter Johnson were the respective pitching leaders of their leagues.

The following won penants among the little majors.

American Association, St. Paul, Pacific Coast League, Seattle, International League, Baltimore, Southern Association, Memphis, Eastern League, Waterbury.

Baltimore again took several on the chin in the "little world series." The Orioles lost to Waterbury, then took on St. Paul and lost again The Saints subsequently hooked up with Seattle, but the series was washed out of existence after one game was played.

How to Solve It

Every number indicates the beginning of a word—if horizontal, crosswise, until the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, downwards until the first shaded stop below. Compare the synonyms in the appended lists to the spaces in the diagrams and fill in the words you know. These will give you clues to the more difficult words. When completed the words should interlock perfectly.

TORONTO GIRLS GO OUT TO WIN— NOT FOR LOOKS

TORONTO, O., Dec. 26.—"We wanta play basketball, not football," was the wail of the Irondale girls' team that played the Toronto quintet at Columbia hall the other night. The game, so the scorekeeper figured up after it was all over, went to Toronto by a 39-14 count.

The visiting girls complained that the locals were too rough for them, while Coach Miss Legon's outfit winked at one another, it is said, and predicted what would happen to Steubenville on January 9.

The Irondale girls failed to comprehend just what they were up against when the two met on the floor.

The visiting lassies, heavily bloomered and bloused, done up in nice style to have their pictures taken, formed a queer contrast to the Toronto misses who wore tight-fitting bloomers and sleeveless jerseys in place of blouses, Irondale wore black, Toronto red.

"We should worry about the looks," one of the Toronto girls said. "What we're after is comfort. We aren't going to be held down by 10 extra pounds of clothes when we don't have to wear 'em.

The Toronto girls are out for the scholastic championship of the Ohio Valley.

Prince of Wales Learning to Play The "Banjulele"

LONDON.—The Prince of Wales already proficient in several of the present-day popular musical instruments, is learning to play the banjulele, the latest craze in Hawaiian instruments.

Brook-Johns, the American tenor-banjoist, introduced the instrument to him when he appeared before the Prince recently, and the Prince was so impressed with the instrument's rythm that he immediately bought two.

It is well known that the Prince has almost a complete set of the latest type of dance-band drums, in the use of which he is very proficient and takes a keen interest.

Habitues of St. James' Palace and York House often witness impromptu dance orchestra entertainments got together by the Prince and members of his staff.

Magazine is Issued By Insane Asylum Inmates in England

LONDON.—A magazine written and edited by lunatics, has been started in England. Some cynics may say that there is nothing new in this, judging from some of the exhibits on the newsstands, but these lunatics are actually in an asylum and are not merely literary bugs. They are inmates of the City Mental hospital at Humberstone, Leicester.

The patients' magazine, which contains both prose and poetry, is never edited or censored by saner outsiders. A recent number of the magazine contained some verses on the buttercup and a sociological study captioned "Should Married Women Work?"
